WRECK ON THE EAST RIVER.

Total Loss of a Steamer—Narrow Escape of a Whole Crew from Drowning.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning intense commotion was excited among the navigators of East River, as well as among the spectators from its shores, by the occurrence of a collision between a scow and a steamer called the Norwalk, occasioning the almost immediate sinking of the latter. The Norwalk, a steamer of about four hundred tons, belonged to Messrs. SMITH, LEWIS & WILSON, by whom she has for some time been run between Coney Island and New-York. Yesterday morning, however, it had been arranged that she should be used to carry passengers to Prospect Park races, and with this view she had been prepared for the reception of a large number of the sporting community, and, with a crew of about eight men, was proceeding serenely up the river, bound for the pier at the foot of Twenty-third-street, where an expectant throng, with bright anticipations of the pleasures before them, was awaiting her. She, however, as the sequel discloses, was not doomed to be the bearer of this jubilant assemblage of holiday-makers to the scene of sport. With full sails spread before the breeze, she was steaming on her course in the middle of the river, and was nearly opposite Fulton Ferry, when a scow, heavily laden with mud and propelled by a stationary engine, was being towed behind a ship being towed down the River, and here on with terrific velocity toward the steamer. The pilots of both vessels soon perceived that a fearful collision was imminent, and in order to avert the inevitable catastrophe, the pilot of the Norwalk, evidently confident of his perception of the danger, reversed the paddles; but so unexpected was the occurrence, and so imminent was the approach of the tug, that before there was time for a second thought, a violent collision had ensued. The scow was a tumbledown affair, heavily built, with massive timbers, massively bound with iron, and the violent contact of one of these corners had the effect of staving an immense hole in the side of the steamer. The Norwalk received the blow in the locality of the forward gangway, just about water line. The force of the tug, being of such huge proportions, afforded an easy influx for an enormous volume of water, and in a few seconds it was evident that all efforts to prevent a total wreck would be futile. For a few minutes she seemed to battle the unmanageable with the numbing wind which was oppressing her, but becoming more and more depressed, with a sudden plunge, bows first, she performed a complete somersault, and the waters closed over her, leaving scarcely any portion of her rigging visible. While the wreck was being thus rapidly engulfed, the scow, scuttled, the crew, in a state of confusion and excitement, and solicitous for their own safety, had succeeded in lowering a small boat, and four of them—namely, the captain, pilot, fireman and deckhand—had succeeded in reaching it, just as the struggling steamer, after a last effort, had succumbed to the overpowering influence of her watery cargo. In going down she partially revolved, and the paddle-wheel rising under the small boat, capsized her, and her occupants were immediately immersed, and struggling for their lives. The remaining men of the crew, frantic with the perils surrounding them, plunged into the river, and with that energy which is prompted by the fear of death, swam heavily. The danger by which they were surrounded, however, soon had been observed, and numbers of spectators who had set off in boats rendered opportune assistance by picking up the gasping crew. Notwithstanding the hair-breadth escapes many of the men experienced, none was lost—happy result, doubtedly owing to the timely arrival of the small boats. One of these, however, containing three men, at one time promised to add another phase to the disaster. These men were among the first to put off to the succor of the distressed crew, and had nearly placed themselves alongside of the sinking steamer, when she turned. Her close proximity was fraught with great danger, for the whirlpool produced by her immersion nearly had the effect of swamping them, and it was only by the dexterous handling of the oars that the boat maintained her position. As soon as it was ascertained that all the crew had been saved, attempts were made for the raising of the sunken vessel. Ropes were soon securely attached to her, and having been communicated to the steamtugs John Fullen and Mills, she was soon towed to the shore opposite Fulton-ferry, where, by means of the usual devices were resorted to, but when the TIMES' reporter left the spot, the efforts to raise the vessel had been unavailing. The men, however, superintending the work appeared to think it probable that she would be raised during the evening. The Norwalk, it is stated, was in a sound condition, six years ago having been thoroughly reconstructed. Her value is estimated at $60,000, and, unfortunately for her owners, she is not insured.

MARINE CASUALTY.

A Ship Run Down and Sunk in the Harbor.

About 11:15 o'clock A. M. yesterday, when the steamer Russia, of the Cunard line, Captain LOTT, arrived at this port, from Europe, she ran into the Austrian ship Figlia Maggiore, which was at anchor there, and sunk her. The Figlia Maggiore was a full-rigged three-masted sailing vessel, and was struck by the Russia at the larboard side and went down in about ten minutes. Captain BOSHANOVICH and the mate of the Austrian vessel were at the office of Messrs. G. SLOCOVICH & Co., ship brokers and commission merchants, No. 121 Pearl-street, to whom the ship was consigned when the accident occurred, and the rest of the crew were all saved by the boats of their ship, and the newboats on hand, so that no lives were lost. The crew, who were all Italian sailors, were taken to the office of Messrs. SLOCOVICH & Co. Orders have been given by this firm to the United States Wrecking Company for raising the ship, which was in about eight fathom water, and whose cargo consisted of French wines, petroleum, cotton, and other articles. The ship was an Austrian vessel, owned by the firm ANRADA C. RALLI, of Trieste, Austria. She was valued at about $60,000, and insured in the Austrian Lloyds', a branch office of which is in this City. The cargo was worth about $200,000, and is insured in different insurance companies. It had been taken in by the vessel at Marseilles, France, where she had sailed on the 11th of March. The ship was a new vessel, and had arrived at this port day before yesterday, and not having got been entered at the Custom-house, she had been lying at anchor only a short distance off Castle Garden. The weather was quite clear when the accident occurred, and the Cunard steamer had a regular pilot on board. The occurrence seems to have been caused by carelessness on the part of the pilot or Captain of the steamer. It has been stated that too many vessels had been lying on the Jersey side, where the dock of the Cunard steamers is situated, and that then the steamer came so near the Battery.

SEVERE EXPLOSION.

Explosion in the East River—Three Men Injured.

Yesterday morning, at a few minutes before 11 o'clock, the steaming William Peck was lying at her wharf at Pier No. 15, North River, foot of Wall-street, with steam up, ready at a moment's notice to proceed to Sandy Hook and tow in the City any inward-bound vessel that might need her services. Her Captain, THOS. REANEY, was standing on the deck of the little vessel near the pilot-house, and had been talking with the cook, FRANCIS JOHNSON. The latter went aforward, and taking some eggs from the refrigerator, which stood on the forward deck, was in the act of placing them in a basket, when suddenly there came a loud report; the wheel-house was lifted high in air and thrown into the river, a distance of twenty feet from the vessel; the Captain was lifted bodily to a great height and fell on the adjacent wharf; the cook was knocked senseless on the forward deck; and CHARLES POWELL, another of the hands, was thrown into the water, from which he was speedily rescued by some bystanders; the boiler of the tug had suddenly exploded.

A crowd assembled, Policemen were drawn to the spot, and all was excitement for a while in the immediate neighborhood of the scene of the disaster. The injured men were speedily cared for. The Captain was taken to his residence, No. 148 James-street, where he soon had medical attendance. He was found to be badly scalded and bruised, but it was not thought that his life was in danger. The cook and the deck-hand were conveyed by Officers WALSH and RYAN to Bellevue Hospital, where one of our reporters visited them later in the day, and found that their wounds had been dressed and that no fears of a fatal result were entertained. The correct list of the sufferers is as follows: THOMAS REANEY, Captain, residing in New-York, badly scalded and seriously bruised; CHARLES POWELL, deckhand, aged 23, residing in Philadelphia, slight external injuries; FRANCIS JOHNSON, steward, aged 45, German, very badly scalded about the body and arms. JOHNSON has a wife and family residing in Boston.

The cause of the catastrophe remains to be explained. This is the most important matter to be considered whenever these steam-boiler explosions occur. No lives were lost, fortunately, in the present instance; but how many and who, of those who read these words, may not constitute the victims of the next casualty? The cause of the explosion is found in the weakness of the front head of the boiler, the iron of the head having been burned in turning the flange when the boiler was constructed. The William Peck is the property of WASHINGTON DUCKETT, of Philadelphia, and was built five years ago. The damage to the vessel is comparatively slight, amounting to less than $2,000. The boiler was five years old, and on the engine by the names of the manufacturers of the engine and the boiler were inscribed, as follows: "NEAFIE & LEVY, Engine Builders, Philadelphia, 1864, No. 418." The tug, after the explosion, was towed to the next pier below that at which she had been lying, and during the afternoon was visited by a great many of the curious and of the anxious, whom the report of the occurrence (both in the air and in the newspapers) brought to the scene.

ANOTHER PETROLEUM FIRE.

Ten Thousand Barrels of Oil Burned at Hunters Point—An Island of Fire Wafted up the Creek—Tremendous Explosion of the Tanks.

About 3 o'clock yesterday morning, the watchman of the oil factory, at Newtown Creek, discovered a fire in two places on the opposite side of the creek on the premises of the Devoe Manufacturing Company, of No. 117 Fulton-street, New-York, refiners of petroleum and naptha. They seemed at first but small fires, like the glimmer of lanterns, and at two points at a distance of three hundred feet apart, but before five minutes had elapsed, they burst forth with a volume of fire and smoke, the two lights united, and from that time for twenty-four hours after, the conflagration raged with redoubtable fury. An alarm was at once sounded, and very shortly engines Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 7, 10, 12 and 13, from the Brooklyn (E. D.) Fire Department, arrived, and with them Hose Companies Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8. The Police steamer soon came upon the scene, and the steamer Minnehonoch also threw a stream upon the burning mass. The shed in which the fire raged the hottest, contained in tanks and casks nearly one thousand barrels of petroleum, and the scene was one of the wildest confusion. Lighters located to the water's edge with petroleum and naptha, were caught in the hot embrace; their masts gave way and and went down the reeds in a prairie storm. The brig Amelia, lying at the wharf, ready for sea, loaded with oil, began to HANGOUT a hawser, which was loose, but the flames reached the rigging and she floated down the creek one blaze of fire. She soon grounded near the point that juts out at the mouth of the creek and finally the remaining element fed upon deck, rigging and masts, and as the burning barrels floated off the vessel sank. The whole creek and river seemed a sea of fire. An immense volume of burning oil, that seemed like a blazing island, was carried by the tide up toward the new wooden bridge, and the flames spread to the docks and Newtown Creek, and on that bridge for a few minutes until danger was passed, a hundred streams were playing. Here both Police and firemen did noble work. The lighter Consuelo, belonging to GILMORE, MCBARE & Co., no longer ago than Friday last, and the lighters Washington and W. Price had already been turned to the water's edge, and on land the fire still continued to advance, preying upon everything within a radius of ten acres. Adjoining the burning sheds was the coal, wood, lime and lath yard of Mr. C. PROVOST, TOMPKINS, of course, fell in the way of the advancing flames, and are they were arrested the establishment sustained a damage of upward of $2,000. Within the tenement-houses close at hand, the wildest confusion raged. Beds, bedding and furniture were either thrown from the windows or hurried from the doors, and while the owners sought refuge from the cold of the morning in the cars and yard of the Long Island Railroad Company, Fears were entertained for the machine shops of the Company, and they were only saved by the vigorous efforts of a gang of men under the direction of Mr. OLMSTEAD, the master mechanic of the road. Men and women hurried away from the locality when it was rumored that a large tank, containing many thousand gallons had been caught by the flames, and that it would explode, and the iron sides felt the heat. The rumor proved true, for at about 4:45 a tremendous explosion took place. Every house within a half a mile of the scene was shaken to its foundation, and men were prostrated on the sidewalks and knocked down by clubs. The end of the conflagration was then grand and startling. River, Creek and Point, all seemed one molten sea of flame, and the rising sun was darkened in the smoke and lurid glare.

A lager-beer saloon near the sheds, kept by F. C. BLOOMER, was destroyed, the occupants of the dwelling-house barely escaping with their lives.

The oil refinery of Messrs. DAY & CO., immediately adjoining the Devoe Manufacturing Company, also went down before the advancing flame, and ere it passed upward of 4,000 barrels of oil and an extensive plant of machinery were consumed. Their loss is about $60,000, partly covered by insurance. The shop for the manufacture of cans for the Devoe Manufacturing Company was probably the most extensive in the world. Their loss cannot be far from $200,000. Some two hundred hands were employed in that department alone, and in less than one hour, such was the fury of the devouring element, a heap of broken machinery, charred rafters and broken walls alone marked the spot.

The Devoe Manufacturing Company was undoubtedly the largest petroleum refinery in the United States. In their yards there were nine immense tanks, capable of holding 240,000 gallons of oil, and 4,000 barrels of petroleum. There were also 12,000 cans of oil ready for shipment, and forty barrels of turpentine were stored in the yard. All were consumed. In another yard, used principally for canning and storing refined naphtha, some 22,000 cans were on fire at one time. There were also 400 barrels of refined petroleum and 200 cases of cans (ten gallons each) of the same oil.

Flocking like vultures to the scene came river-thieves and landsharks in swarms, jumping from boats and eagerly seizing every article except the burning petroleum. The river-thieves, in their haste, towed and bore away everything they succeeded in fastening their grapples, of the Forty-seventh Precinct, and a posse of policemen aided materially in keeping back the marauders, who rushed into tenement-houses abandoned by their occupants, and were eagerly engaged in plundering what was left.

Early in the morning two steamers from the New-York Metropolitan Fire Department arrived, but their services were declined by the committee of Chief-Engineer SMITH, of the Brooklyn Fire Department. The fire continued to rage during the day, but was hemmed in by the streams playing upon it, and extended by the very fury of the flames, of the stock of material on which it fed. It finally died out late last evening, though subdued and smouldering it will last probably for days. That it was the work of an incendiary seems to be without doubt. The loss will not be far from a half million dollars, and upward of 200 persons have been thrown out of employment. The books at the firm containing the insurance accounts cannot be procured for some days, but the losses to insurance companies will probably be moderate as compared with the losses by the conflagration.

A Livery Stable Destroyed by Fire in Brooklyn—Loss of Carriages, Velocipedes, &c.—Estimated Loss, $75,000.

Shortly after 9 o'clock last night a fire broke out in the extensive livery stables of H. B. WITTY, Nos. 2, 4, 6 and 8 Novins-street, Brooklyn, one of the finest establishments of the kind in that city. One of the employes discovered the flames breaking out at the upper end of the hay loft, immediately adjoining the liquor store of GOODENOUGH & FRANKEL, No. 12 Harlan-street. The flames, once started, spread through the four-story building rapidly. An efficient force of men, who applied themselves vigorously to the task of saving the live stock, succeeded in getting every horse out of the premises in a remarkably brief space, although they had to be taken from the second story. In a short time the whole building was totally destroyed. A considerable portion of the rolling stock, including carriages, wagons and velocipedes, was also saved. The Willy stables were erected about one year ago, and were regarded as a model for convenience, ventilation and general accommodation. The building cost $40,000. The rolling stock of carriages, velocipedes, sleighs and other articles in the building was valued at $75,000, and it is estimated that the loss in that department amounts to about $35,000. The building and stock are insured in a dozen companies of New-York and Brooklyn for $20,000. The building in which the liquor store was located is owned by Mr. CRISCOLLO. It sustained damage to the extent of about $600; insured. The houses of Geo. P. JARVIS, and several other houses, were damaged to the extent of about $200 each. But a brief time elapsed from the breaking out of the fire until the magnificent stable edifice was in ruins. At 10:30 o'clock the walls gave way with a terrible crash, and the stable was no more.

THE FIRE AT BULL'S FERRY.

The details of the extensive kerosene oil fire at Bull's Ferry on Monday, of which a partial account was given in yesterday's TIMES, show that the fire was of a very serious nature. The scene of the affair was a spit of mainly artificial ground at Bull's Ferry, running into the river, on which were the kerosene oil works of Messrs. WYCKS BROTHERS, of No. 188 Front-street, and MORGAN & Co.'s vitriol and chemical manufactory. The fire broke out at 3 o'clock on Monday in the former place, which contained at the time a large quantity of both crude and refined oils. The fire was discovered in the pan-room, and is supposed to have arisen from the gas which is generated in the process of manufacture becoming ignited. About forty men were employed in the works, who, under the direction of JAMES REILLY, superintendent, and H. SHORT, the engineer, made every effort to suppress the flames. By their exertions much of the property was saved which would otherwise have been a total loss. The burning oil escaped from the tanks through waste pipes, and covered the surface of the river for some distance with flame many feet high. About 200 barrels of oil were saved by being thrown into the river, and others were rolled into a swamp near by. A number of barrels exploded without doing any damage. The fire engine "John Fuller," from West Hoboken, came to the scene of the conflagration, but was not able to render much assistance. The wind fortunately was not, in the direction of the adjoining works, or they would certainly have been destroyed. As it was, a shed belonging to PAGE, KIDDER & Co., and containing several thousand empty tar barrels, was destroyed, together with a fence, shed, gateway and part of a frame building used as an office with its contents. The flames finally got under control about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, but remained in a smouldering state through the day. About 600 barrels of crude oil were destroyed, with 1,500 to 2,000 barrels of refined oil in tanks, together with the treating house, boiler room and a large warehouse. The loss of WYCKS BROTHERS will probably equal $100,000, the amount stated in the TIMES, and is not covered by insurance. That of the other parties will be comparatively small. Fortunately no person was hurt during the fire, notwithstanding the reports to the contrary.

THE TURF.

The Prospect Park Inaugural Trotting Meeting—The Opening Day—Fine Weather, Fine Trotting and Fair Attendance—The Fastest Double Team Time Made on Record.

Yesterday was the inauguration day of the Prospect Park Fair Grounds Association trotting, which will continue over Thursday and Saturday. The weather was delightful; a capital programme of sport was provided by the executive, but the attendance was far from being as numerous as the Association had a just right to anticipate. Whether the Prospect Park Course will ever become a popular trotting track with New-Yorkers is a matter of doubt, for the route by the Coney Island horse cars, which run within a short distance of the track, entails a long, dusty and weary ride; while those who take the route by steamboats have a good two miles to walk, which under a Summer sun is not the most desirable exercise. For the residents of Brooklyn, however, who have to encounter the nuisance of crossing the East River ferries, Prospect Park must inevitably become highly popular, for the drive on the Coney Island Plank road is a delightful one, running through a country abounding in picturesque beauty. The course itself is a fine one, the Club-house is a tasteful and elegant specimen of architecture, the grand stand of capacious extent, and the stables and other accessories of the most complete description. The homestretch is the most objectionable feature of the track, on account of its limited length, and it is to be hoped for the Club's sake that neither the occupants of the Club-house nor the grand stand can accurately time the horses, or tell which of them has won in the event of a close contest. The space around the grand stand is separated from the Club-house and inclosure by a fence rather a trifling one, but impassable barrier and line of demarcation between the lot, the public who patronize the meeting, and the members of the Association. The balconies of the Club-house were filled with elegantly-attired ladies, who evidently took special interest in the grand exposition of the double-team race. Under the grand stand the pool seller had a spacious apartment for the exercise of his vocation, but business was far from brisk, the sales not amounting to over $7,000 on the day's races.

THE FIRST RACE

was for a purse of $300, mile heats, best three in five, in harness, for horses that had never beaten 2:45; $200 to the first horse, $100 to the second, $100 to the third horse.

The entries were DANIEL MACE'S b. m. Lydia Thompson; R. WARD'S b. g. Trenton, (formerly called Defiance;) J. MURPHY'S b. m. Lady Ella; DAN. PFIFFER'S br. m. No Name; and OWNER'S b. m. Miles Tree. The last-named mare was drawn, and of the others, Lydia Thompson was so strongly fancied that she was backed at slight odds against the field. Trenton was driven by PETER MAHER, who has recently had the management and training of American Girl, but his success with her has been such as to lead to her being transferred to M. RODEN'S charge.

FIRST HEAT—Trenton had a length the best of the start, and he quickly improved it so much that at the quarter-pole, reached in forty seconds, he had added a length of two lengths; the favorite being second to him and PFIFFER last, evidently not going for the heat. The half-mile was trotted in 1:19¾, and the three-quarters in 1:38¾; the horses still being in the same positions. Coming up the stretch MACE let his mare out, and sloshing rapidly on Trenton, got on his head at the distance, and, thanks to his superior driving, the favorite won the heat by half a length in 2:30; Lady Ella being third and PFIFFER last.

SECOND HEAT—Betting two to one on Lydia Thompson, who got off side by side with Trenton, but the latter, breaking at the turn, went all to pieces; and his chance of the heat completely extinguished. The favorite led six lengths at the quarter-pole, in 39½ seconds; four lengths at the half-mile, in 1:18½; the same at the three-quarter pole, in 1:58, and, after a fine finish with Trenton who became with a sudden rush at the close, won the heat by a length in 2:27½. Trenton was last.

THIRD HEAT—Betting $100 to $35 for Lydia Thompson, who took the lead at the start, maintained it throughout, and won the second race by two lengths, in 2:46½; PFIFFER'S No Name second, Lady Ella third and Trenton last. The purse, which was hung up in the judges' stand, was promptly handed over to the winner.

THE DOUBLE-TEAM RACE

came next and was for a purse of $1,500, mile heats, best three in five. The entries were DAN MACE'S g. g. Mack and b. g. Tommy; R. R. WADSWORTH'S ch. g. Dorlisca, and blk. m. Jessie Weles; and J. L. BENNOUS' br. g. Old Pat and s. g. Honest Allen. Tommy having gone lame, compelled the withdrawal of MACE'S team. The Roden team of blacks were reported capable of going in 2:30 certain, and this was thought good enough to win, for they become warm favorites, bringing in pools at the rate of $200 to $60. They were driven by Colonel DECKER, while W. BONST drove Honest Allen and Old Pat.

PARIS, Tuesday, May 25.

Dispatches from Marseilles report that there has been much excitement in that city over the elections. Large crowds paraded the streets, and there were shouts of "Vive la Republic." The places of business were closed in anticipation of a riot. At the last accounts order had been restored. The result of the elections in Paris and Lyons has been favorable to the Anti-Imperial candidates. It is reported that M. ROCHEFORT has been chosen. Seventy-three elections are completed. They show the following result: The Government candidates (official) were elected in 49, the Independent in 9, the Democratic in 2, and in the remaining 13 there was no result.

The Bourse is flat, owing to the excitement occasioned by the elections.

The London Times on the French Elections.

LONDON, Tuesday, May 25.

The Times this morning in an editorial on the French elections, says the chief cities repudiate the idea of the Empire, and a revival of political activity will result from a verdict which condemns personal government. The restoration of parliamentary government may conciliate the existing feeling; by such means only can the Emperor expect to mitigate an opposition which has not yet become anti-dynastic.

All the returns received up to this hour show that 116 official and 26 opposition members have been elected. The elections in forty-eight districts still remain undecided.

The steamer Paris arrived at Kingston, Jamaica, on the 18th inst., after landing the expedition in the Bay of Nipe. She returns to New-York in a few days. Five Cuban passengers remained on board.

The markets are generally dull.

Auction Sale of a Railroad at New-Orleans—The Commercial Convention.

NEW-ORLEANS, Tuesday, May 25.

The sale of the New-Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Railroad took place this morning by virtue of an order from the United States Circuit Court, under the auspices of Ex-United States Marshal F. J. HERRON. The principal interests represented were the Illinois Central Railroad, the Mobile and Chattanooga Railroad, the bondholders of the road, and CHAS. MORGAN. The first bid was $1,000,000, the next $1,500,000. The bids then proceeded by hundreds of thousands to $2,000,000, which was bid by Mr. PAUL BLANC in behalf of the bondholders of the road, to which amount he was limited. C. A. WHITNEY, representing CHAS. MORGAN, bid $2,050,000, at which amount it was knocked down after a moment's pause, and $10,000 immediately paid as a guarantee. Mr. WHITNEY announced that it was the intention of Mr. MORGAN, who was present in person, to immediately set about extending the road to the Sabine. The actual sale occupied barely ten minutes.

The Commercial Convention has adjourned over till Wednesday, and the delegates are on an inspecting tour to the mouth of the Mississippi to-day.

LABOR REFORM.

Meeting of the New-England Labor Reform League at Boston—Speeches of Prominent Reformers—The Labor Reform Creed Declared—Strong Resolutions Adopted—Radical Changes Demanded—Address of Wendell Phillips.

BOSTON, Tuesday, May 25.

The Convention of the New-England Labor Reform League assembled to-day in the Melodeon, E. H. HEYWOOD, of Worcester, President of the League, in the chair. The President, in calling the meeting to order, gave an explanation of the objects of the League. He referred in detail to disadvantages resulting to the laboring classes from the power of property centralized and acting as a unit, from corporations, from railroads and the monopoly of land. The cost of railroad travel had been estimated by JOSIAH QUINCY at half a cent a mile, yet by the grant of corporate powers, instead of costing the individual twenty-five cents to go from Boston to Worcester, it costs quadruple, and the result is that the stock is watered and the people are cheated out of $9,000,000, and upon this same interest is to be paid by the traveling public for all time to come. He closed by enumerating the five points of the labor reform creed to be free trade, free money, free travel, free transportation and free land.

A long series of resolutions was introduced and discussed, declaring:

First, That the art of wresting from others the largest possible amount of value for the least possible return is a dishonest practice, which will result in monopoly and speculation.

Second, That the monopoly of gold and silver by the Government for the purpose of money, tends to give a few persons the privilege of controlling the interest on money, the prices of commodities and the wages of labor.

The third affirms free money as the true policy for giving to each man the opportunity to use his credit to be status, independent of corporations.

The fourth affirms the wrongfulness of taking interest, rent, profit, or any thing for the use of national lands and the substitution of Treasury certificates of service for the present Government currency.

The fifth declares that the Massachusetts Legislature for refusing to repeal the Interest Law, has granted more privileges to chartered capitalists, and at the same time refusing to incorporate workingmen for co-operative purposes, has shown that the Governor of Connecticut for seeking to have the rate of interest raised to seven per cent.

Sixth, That the poverty of workingmen results for so much of their labor as is paid to individual employers as the false system upon which business and finance is conducted.

Seventh, That the organization of labor reformers throughout the country should be perfected in order that they may be represented in the National Labor Convention.

The eighth urges that the free public markets shall be established in cities.

The ninth affirms the purpose to make the labor reform paramount in the political action to be taken in the various elections.

The tenth and last, mainly favoring the reduction of a day's labor to eight hours.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

At the afternoon session B. J. BUTTS, of Hopedale, Mass., read an essay on the labor question, reviewing the whole subject, and attempting to show the admitted advantages of the decrease of hours from twelve and fourteen to ten.

Letters were received from WM. H. SYLVIS, of Pennsylvania; Rev. J. M. MANNING, of Boston, and Senator SPRAGUE, of Rhode Island, expressing their sympathy with the objects of the meeting. In his letter, Senator SPRAGUE said:

"I hoped to be present to give such a clear picture of the present down-hill course of all our industries, and at the same time point out a remedy that all who hear me will understand and go to work right."

A report signed by Miss M. J. ANDREWS, SARAH E. FLETCHER and SARAH H. HATHAWAY was submitted, relative to the question of woman's labor, in response to the vote of the Working-women's Convention, held in Boston last week, and referred to the Labor Reform League. The report considers the grievances of the sewing-women, and appeals to the wealthy of Boston for aid and advice, in view of the fact that the interests of society in general were involved in the welfare of the industrial female population. Miss ANDREWS also submitted a resolution, declaring that the men have failed in their duty to protect the natural and inalienable rights of the women, and that the starvation wages which now rule for women's work, are in contravention of the Constitution of Massachusetts.

Short addresses were made by Mrs. SARAH E. HATHAWAY, of Boston; ROBERT BOWEN, of Lawrence; E. H. ROGERS, of Chelsea, and others.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening session was well attended. The first speaker was Rev. Mr. MALLALIEU, of Boston, who acknowledged himself a sympathizer with the objects of the League. Miss JENNIE COLLINS followed in a sharp and characteristic speech, in the course of which she referred to the action of Congress in refusing the Eight-Hour law in Congress.

WENDELL PHILLIPS was the next speaker. He held that commerce was labor—a great civilizer and cosmopolitan agent—and derided the idea that the world of industry had not progressed during the past eight thousand years. In all progress he returns the advance as a cause was to get on the round of the ladder, next to that on which the people stand and press on until you reach it. He held that labor as well as capital made the laws, and that it was folly to expect to popularize measures in personal teaching. It was foolish for labor to attack capital. The true remedy was to bring the brains of the whole community to bear upon the subject of labor reform by giving the workingmen more leisure and knowledge. Mr. PHILLIPS contended that the capitalist was equally interested with the laborer in bringing about industrial reform. The workingmen were not sufficiently interested in their own cause to succeed; President GRANT, his legal advisers notwithstanding, had done more for the workingmen than anybody else. The laboring men have got to ask for what they want intelligently, and cease their operatives to the eight-hour rule and to shools in the evening. Laboring men would then be educated up to the point of self-preservation. Mr. PHILLIPS said that the eight-hour rule and schools for workingmen were destined to create as great a revolution among political parties as ever the negro did. The speaker disapproved of "strikes" among workingmen, and recommended as the best remedy for their wrongs, for them to strangle Republicanism with one hand and Democracy with the other, and march to the polls in a solid phalanx with a "labor ticket." In conclusion, Mr. PHILLIPS recommended that the meeting pass an additional resolution, thanking President GRANT for his action in relation to the Eight-Hour law.

The meeting then adjourned until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Judge Busteed at Montgomery—The Contempt Investigation.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Tuesday, May 25.

Judge BUSTEED is now holding a term of the United States Court here. The Congressional Committee to investigate his conduct are expected to-night. Judge BUSTEED has been here two weeks, and was here when it was stated from Washington that he desired the investigation to proceed at Washington, because it would be unsafe for him to come to Alabama.

HARTFORD, Conn., Tuesday, May 25.

A cable dispatch received in this city to-day announced the death, in Paris, of Judge JOSEPH P. ALLYN, son of Ex-Mayor T. M. ALLYN, of this city. Judge ALLYN was appointed one of the Judges of the Territory of Arizona by President LINCOLN when the Territorial Government was organized, and performed the duties of the office for four years. He went to Europe two years ago, being troubled with a pulmonary complaint. He was 36 years old.

Heavy Thunder Storm and Gale in Kansas.

ATCHISON, Kansas, Tuesday, May 25.

A heavy thunder storm occurred yesterday in this vicinity. A house in Kickapoo Station, on the Central Branch Road, was blown to atoms, and four persons who were in the house at the time were badly injured. A lady was blown about two hundred feet. Other people were blown some distance, and all many or less hurt, but none seriously.

TERRIBLE CRIMES.

Bloody Affray in the Fourth Ward—Two Men Fatally Stabbed.

ASSAULTS BY GERMAN SAILORS.

Boys Accused of Drowning One of their Companions.

THE FOURTH WARD AFFRAY.

Condition of the Wounded Men—The Assailants Still at Large.

PETER BYRNES and WILLIAM BRADLEY, who were stabbed in Oak-street at an early hour yesterday morning, yet remain in Bellevue Hospital, where they were conveyed immediately after the affray, and while both are considered in a dangerous condition, the wound of BYRNES is thought to be mortal. BYRNES was stabbed in the left breast, and Dr. ARMSTRONG, who made the first examination of the wound, is of opinion that the point of the knife penetrated the lung, in which case death must soon ensue. BRADLEY, who was stabbed in the small of the back, has not suffered any relapse, and hopes of his recovery are entertained.

These wounds proceeded from as slight a cause as ever occasioned deadly hurts. At 1 o'clock in the morning three Spanish sailors were reeling through Oak-street, roaring out one of their native songs in boisterous and discordant measure. These noisy fellows attracted the attention of BYRNES and BRADLEY, who were loitering in front of No. 29 Oak-street, the home of BRADLEY. Actuated by the spirit of mischief the two attempted to imitate the uproarious song of the Spaniards, and the latter, hearing the mocking sounds, passed,

SEIZURE OF A STEAMER.

The Quaker City in Custody of the United States Marshal.

The steamer Quaker City, or Columbia, as she has been lately designated, was seized yesterday by the United States Marshal for contemplated violation of the neutrality laws. A few days ago Collector GRINNELL became aware of suspicious circumstances connected with the vessel, and he telegraphed such information as he was possessed of to Washington. He received a reply directing him to withhold the vessel's papers and to communicate with the United States District-Attorney. After a full investigation of all facts, District-Attorney PIERREPONT yesterday entered a process against the vessel, and she was placed in the custody of the United States Marshal.

The Quaker City is an old and rickety vessel, barely, it is said, seaworthy. She has been lately running on a Southern route, but she did not pay expenses, and was withdrawn and laid up. Within a few weeks past she was purchased by her present owners for an amount somewhere between $100,000 and $130,000. She was then altered, all her deck incumbrances being removed, a heavy platform, looking very much like a run-deck placed aft, and her wheel-house also placed aft. A cargo of 2,000 barrels of flour was placed on board, and a crew of about forty men shipped. A number of these left as the vessel did not sail at the time her officers promised she would. Others, however, have been secured, and she was in readiness to make the Custom-house for clearance papers for Kingston. These were of course refused, although the owners of the vessel offered to give bonds to almost any amount if the vessel was allowed to proceed on her voyage.

The Quaker City now lies at the pier foot of Thirteenth-street, East River, and there it seems she is likely to remain for some time to come.

THE CROTON BOARD.

The Rumored Insanity of the President—The Business of the Board.

The statement made in a morning paper of yesterday, that Mr. THOMAS STEPHENS, President of the Croton Board, is insane and confined in a lunatic asylum, is flatly contradicted by the officials of the Department. Mr. STEPHENS has been suffering from ill health for six months past, and a few weeks ago he met with an accident which increased the physical difficulties under which he had been laboring, but during the whole time he has never been so much prostrated, with the exception of a few days, as to be unable to attend to business. The further statement that the business of the Croton Department is at a standstill, that no requisitions can be made by the Department, and that the salaries of the officials are in arrears, is also contradicted. On Saturday last a number of requisitions and other papers bearing Mr. STEPHENS' signature were sent in to the Comptroller, and contracts to the amount of several hundred thousand dollars were opened on the same day, and will be awarded as soon as the sureties are approved by Mr. CONNOLLY.

The whole rumor of Mr. STEPHENS' insanity arose from the monthly pay-roll of the employes of the Department being returned because it did not bear Mr. STEPHENS' signature as usual, he being out of town. The omission has been rectified, and Mr. STEPHENS will be at his post as usual some time during the week.

Assorted Robbery—A Doubtful Case.

On Saturday, the 20th inst., FREDERICK W. SCHWARTZ came to the City from Hunter's Point, and passed the evening in drinking wine at the Atlantic Garden, on the Bowery. About 11 o'clock he started to go home, but, being very sick, sat down for a time near the corner of Catherine-street. While he was sitting there two men came to him and said he had better get up, for a policeman was coming and would arrest him. They helped him up, took him to a saloon and gave him some soda-water, which made him worse than before. Then they took him to Chrystie-street, and in the entry of a house robbed him of his watch and ran off. He pursued them, and caught HYMAN UKRAINSKI, who, he says, had held him while the other took the watch. UKRAINSKI was arraigned in the Court of General Sessions yesterday on an indictment for robbery.

Mr. SCHWARTZ, through the interpreter, told his story as above.

UKRAINSKI was then called to the stand, and stated that a man named KIDD met him in the street on the evening in question, and asked him to come and talk German to a man who was drunk. He consented, and afterward helped carry SCHWARTZ to the house in Chrystie-street, KIDD saying that he would sleep there. While he was holding the drunken man, KIDD, in the entry, KIDD suddenly snatched the watch and ran. He (UKRAINSKI) was walking off slowly with SCHWARTZ when the latter, all at once, accused him of the robbery and had him arrested. The complainant's story and that of the prisoner differed only with reference to the gait at which the latter left the scene of the robbery. The jury, unwilling to convict of so grave a charge on uncertain evidence, brought a verdict of petit larceny from the person, and Judge BEDFORD sent the boy to State Prison for five years.

Desperate Attempt at Suicide by a Millionaire.

Yesterday morning Mr. BARRETT H. VAN ALKEN, a gentleman well known in mining circles, and the President of the Durango Silver Mining Company, made a most desperate and probably successful attempt to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. It appears that Mr. VAN ALKEN, who has an office on the third floor in the building of the Tennessee Zinc Company, on the first floor of No. 78 William-street, was standing at the door about 9 o'clock in company with two or three gentlemen connected with the Zinc Company, and they were talking together. Mr. VAN ALKEN was seen to go into his office, and he immediately approached his office boy on an errand. One of the gentlemen, already alluded to, then passed into VAN ALKEN's office, and was startled to find his friend bleeding excessively from a disgraceful wound in the throat. Medical aid was summoned, and the flow of blood was stanched. It appears that the misguided man acted with considerable deliberation, as several letters addressed to his friends and executors were found on the desk, as well as his shaving-cup and razor, which he had removed, the better to effect his purpose. The wound inflicted with the razor was very deep, and though the blade had escaped the windpipe, the physicians who attended the patient have very considerable hopes of Mr. ALKEN's recovery, although he has lost an immense quantity of blood. Mr. VAN ALKEN is a nephew of Mr. C. H. GARRISON, resided at No. 421 Fifth-avenue, and is reputed to be a millionaire, so that the motive which impelled him to make the attempt at self-destruction is unknown. He always appeared to enjoy life in a rational and contented manner, and his conduct yesterday is somewhat of a mystery in the absence of the key, which is no doubt in possession of his relatives.

A Gallant Policeman.

The Board of Metropolitan Police Commissioners held a meeting yesterday, and promoted Patrolman GRANGER, of the First Ward, to the position of roundsman, as a reward for his gallantry in nobly rescuing two soldiers who recently fell in the East River from a Hunterspoint avenue ferry-boat. Roundsman GRANGER has also been presented with a purse of $50 from the rescued soldiers and their friends, in order that he may replace the uniform spoiled by his leap into the cold water.

ART IN BROOKLYN.

New Building for the Art Association—The Location and Design.

The Brooklyn Art Association comprises many of the leading and public-spirited gentlemen of that city, and includes in its membership several leading artists, besides a number of the best scholars in America. The Association has resolved to erect a first-class building with all the appliances and facilities necessary to enable artists to exhibit their works to the best advantage, and the public to enjoy them with every opportunity for fair-play criticism, before approval. With these points in view, the managers of the Association have already purchased ground immediately adjacent to the Academy of Music, and are now engaged in raising the funds necessary to pay for the building. More than half the money required for this purpose has been subscribed, and the friends of art are solicited to aid the Association by completing its work. The ground secured has a frontage on Montague-street of fifty feet, and a depth of one hundred feet. The style of the new building, as decided upon, is of the Gothic order. The exhibition gallery is to be on the second floor. It will have an area of sixty-six feet and forty-six feet, with a height of thirty feet, and lighted with a skylight. On the east side will be an entrance to a passage twelve feet wide, connecting with the Academy of Music, a facility by which the two buildings can be used together on extraordinary occasions. In the front part of the building, on the same floor, will be the water-color gallery, measuring nineteen feet by twenty-four feet. On the upper floor will be gallery for statuary and two studios with good light. These are the principal features of the interior. The plan gives promise of a very handsome and dignified exterior. The main entrance will be at the base of a lofty tower, and will be constituted of a high Gothic arch, sustained by grouped columns of variegated marbles. The front will be of Cleveland stone, pale buff in color, with a relief of dark red and gray. The arch of the main entrance will be guarded with iron gates. The vestibule will be approached through massive carved doors of wood. It will occupy twelve feet by eight feet. Beyond this vestibule will be a spacious hall extending to the rear of the building, the span of the arched ceiling resting on two rows of columns. Connecting with the hall will be the dressing and retiring rooms for visitors.

CASE OF ALLEGED FRAUD.

How the Criminal Courts are Used for Collection of Debts.

So long ago as the 14th of April last, Mr. CLINTON GILBERT, of the Greenwich Savings Bank, appeared before Justice DODGE, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, and filed a very verbose document alleging that he had been defrauded by JAMES BUDLONG and JOHN MURRAY, Jr., of the sum of $50,000. The complaint gave the details of this stupendous fraud with great particularity, and it appeared from the paper, that in May, 1868, GILBERT indorsed notes for BUDLONG for the amount named, and as security for the payment of the notes, mortgages upon the property of BUDLONG in Ohio, and especially upon certain property in the town of Clarendon, Geauga County, known as the Claudon Cheese Factory, whose value was stated at $15,000. Special mention is made of this property as the chief inducement for the issuance of the loans, and it is also alleged that as to this property, and all other included in the mortgages, assurance was given by BUDLONG that it was a first lien, and upon the faith of his representations GILBERT became responsible, and indorsed the notes upon which the money was raised.

The complaint further alleges that GILBERT was induced, by the request and representations of BUDLONG, to delay sending the mortgages to the several county clerks in Ohio for record, and that when he did send them he found that his claim had been superseded by mortgages of prior date, executed by BUDLONG to JOHN MURRAY, Jr., which had already been entered on the record, and constituted the first liens upon the whole of the property. Meantime GILBERT had become solely responsible for the whole of the money by the default of BUDLONG to provide for the payment of the notes, and at the same time he discovered that the securities which he held were worthless.

Upon this complaint a warrant was issued and placed in the hands of Sergeant MCDERMOTT, of the Court Squad, but the execution was long delayed by the absence of both of the accused persons from the City. Yesterday however, Sergeant MCDERMOTT learned that BUDLONG had returned to New-York, and he then arrested him at No. 3 Front-street. When the prisoner was arraigned during the afternoon he stated that he is a merchant and a resident of Brooklyn, and in answer to the charge made against him pleaded not guilty and demanded an examination. Justice DODGE demanded bail for his appearance in the sum of $70,000, and the accused not being prepared at the moment to furnish security to go into an adjoining room, was committed to the Second District Police Prison. MURRAY has not yet been arrested, and is said to be still in Ohio.

Expedition by Artists to the Polar Sea.

Mr. WILLIAM BRADFORD, the artist, whose cruise to the shores of Labrador in search of icebergs last Summer is, doubtless, well remembered, will undertake a similar enterprise this season on a much larger scale. He has chartered a steamship of 400 tons at St. Johns, Newfoundland, and on the 20th proximo will sail thence, accompanied by several artists, for the Arctic regions, visiting all the points of interest made famous by the explorations of Drs. KANE and HAYES, and returning in about three months. The route of the expedition will be as follows: Leaving St. Johns, the party will sail directly for the west coast of Greenland, touching at the principal Dutch and Danish settlements along the coast, including Upernavik, the northernmost settlement on the globe, for the purpose of studying the character and customs of the aborigines. Beyond Upernavik, the voyage will follow up the track of Dr. KANE and Dr. HAYES, as far as Smith's Sound. The expedition will then turn south and west and visit Lancaster Sound, pushing through, if possible, as far as Beechy Island, the Winter quarters of FRANKLIN; thence homeward by the line of the American coast. The steamer to be employed is one of the class known as "Newfoundland sealers," which are built in Scotland expressly for service in the ports of the Arctic regions, strong of hull and remarkably powerful for their tonnage, these vessels are the world. Two skilled photographers have been engaged to accompany the expedition, and a small number of passengers, not over five, will be taken in the cabin. It is probable that Dr. I. I. HAYES may be among the latter. It is to be hoped that all these anticipations by Mr. BRADFORD will be realized.

The German Carpenters' Strike Works.

These men, who have recently formed an organization, which during the brief period of its existence has enrolled over 1,200 members, have just taken the initiative in striking for an increase of wages. They have called upon their employers, informing them that from the 1st of next month they will demand $2 per day for ten hours' labor for first-class workmen, and $1 50 for second-rate men. They request the employers to appoint a committee of conference to meet a similar committee of the journeymen, for the purpose of coming to an understanding in the matter. The employing carpenters lately formed an association for mutual protection in relation to the strike, and it is said that the journeymen are composed of three organizations, one being in Third-street, Twenty-fourth-street, and Eighth-street. This division of the strikers has taken full rolls of every shop in which the members are at work, for the purpose of inducing each carpenter in the City an opportunity to join the movement. At present the wages of the men range from $2 50 to $3.

Second Assembly District Union Republicans.

The third meeting of the Second Assembly District Union Republicans, for the election of officers, was held last evening at No. 476 Pearl-street. The following ticket was elected, the great body of the Republicans having withdrawn: For President, Dennis McLaughlin; for Vice-Presidents, Michael J. Ryan, Michael Hayes; for Treasurer, Michael Bailey; for Recording Secretary, Matthew Stewart; for Corresponding Secretary, Patrick Gill; for members of the General Committee, Dennis McLaughlin, George Ross, James Cavanagh, Michael Ferrier, "Reddy the Blacksmith," accompanied by his myrmidons of the Fourth Ward Democracy, was on the ground prepared to offer every opposition. Being aware of this, the Republicans of the district did not put in an appearance. They have reorganized, and resolve to contest the issue.

Third Anniversary of the Harlem Catholic Association.

The Harlem Catholic Association celebrated their third anniversary at Sulzer's East River Park yesterday afternoon. The members of the society, numbering about seventy-five, and accompanied by their female friends, devoted themselves to terpsichorean amusements, and gaily treaded the lively measures played by Gratulin's String Band. There was a good attendance, and everything went very pleasantly. The object of the Society is to form a club and build a hall and reading-room for the benefit of the Catholic young men of this district, whereby a taste for literature and the graver questions of life may be cultivated.

Five Points Mission.

The $20,000 bequeathed to this institution by the late A. B. SCOLES has enabled the managers to enlarge the building, provide new recitation-rooms, offices, &c., and to realize their long-cherished plan of fitting up a free library and reading-room. The completion of this work was celebrated yesterday by a reception. Very many visitors came. The children went through a variety of exercises, and there were abundant indications that everything is in good working order. The ladies have not yet, however, done all that they wish to accomplish, and would be glad to receive contributions of books, periodicals or money.

ROBBERY IN A BOARDING-HOUSE.

About 6 o'clock Monday evening the room of Mrs. C. L. Sims, in the boarding-house of Mrs. Gleason, No. 146 East Fourth-street, was broken open and robbed of wearing apparel and other articles valued at $100. A most connect Hugh Van Hoesen occupied the next room, and at the time the door between the two rooms had been broken open, and the [illegible] from the office of this Company that an installment the other day that the Dividends on the Stock to be paid by the great Pennsylvania Railway Corporation, out of 20 ₱ cent. net earnings of the leased lines—386 miles in extent—of the Columbus, Cincinnati and Indianapolis Central, are not limited to 6 ₱ cent. per annum, but are to be paid to the full extent of the future net earnings, (20 ₱ cent. on the gross traffic,) which, in the rapid progress of business in the West, may in a few years reach 10 ₱ cent. in place of 6 per cent. The interest to be provided by the Lessee on the Debt of the Company is $1,540,000, or 30 ₱ cent. on $5,126,000 annual gross earnings on the 386 miles.

About 2:30 P. M. a sudden and somewhat violent reaction occurred against the market, and prices on the Western Roads went down from 1 to 1½ ₱ cent., and on one or two Stocks full 2 ₱ cent. One or two Broad-street firms had their Brokers selling freely at the decline, while no one seemed to know the cause of the reaction. The market subsequently recovered to a tone of steadiness, although the buoyancy of the morning was still wanting.

GETTYSBURG.

THE FOUNTAIN OF HEALTH.

Progress in the March of Medical Discovery.

The Paralyzed Made to Walk--The Rheumatic Cured.

Calculi Dissolved--The Functions of the Heart Repaired.

The Blood of Youth Restored--Beauty Restored, Health Preserved and Life Prolonged.

When Hernando de Soto sought the far-famed "Fountain of Perpetual Youth," which Ponce de Leon was said to have discovered in Florida, neither fatigue nor hunger nor suffering delayed him in his search. For more than two years he held his way through the wilds and swamps which characterize the country of our Southern States from Florida to the Mississippi. Harassed by enemies without, and mutiny and discontent within his camp, he halted not until the yellow waters of the great river closed over his lifeless genius, to them consigned by his worn and wearied followers.

That march is the great type of the efforts of human beings in the search for health. Harassed by unfavorable circumstances without, and the insatiate craving of disease within, the mortal camp of our life, we are in a perpetual struggle with our deadly enemies. Modern science has done much to relieve suffering and to prolong our years, and every day brings some new fact in nature to the assistance of medical skill.

Although we cannot claim that the fabled fountain of Ponce de Leon has been discovered on the battle-field of Gettysburg, we do unhesitatingly assert that a spring has been found there which truly merits the title of a fountain of health; and any unprejudiced reader who will peruse the high testimony we shall offer, will admit the truthfulness of our assertion.]

A correspondent of the New-York Tribune has recently visited the Gettysburg Katalysine Spring for the purpose of ascertaining the truth or falsity of those accounts of the miracles of cure wrought with this water, given to the public from time to time since the great battle fought at that place. This writer says: "There is no better way of exploding a humbug than by visiting the place of its birth, conversing with those who have known it from its cradle, and observed its daily walk and growth. People are not apt to be humbugged by anything which is daily under their eyes, or to attempt to humbug others if they have no interest in the attendant speculation."

"Throwing aside, therefore, all that was offered to me by parties interested in the Spring, I addressed myself to the task of ascertaining the opinions of its neighbors, those who have observed the effects of its water at all times and seasons upon invalids and open persons in health.

What is Was Created.

[illegible] the spring; and it is now universally used as a substitute for Saratoga. It is invariably used as a last resort when the physician or his prescription has failed to bring the desired for results.

According to the popular belief here, it is has not cured everything, it has, at least, come so near it, that it is more difficult to say what it has not done than what it has. Unless we reject the testimony on which we are accustomed to rely in the most important judicial and scientific truths, we must believe this water has literally cured the sick, the lame, the halt and the blind, in Gettysburg and its vicinity during the last few years. It need not go very far from the Spring for the subjects of these modern miracles. I have seen and conversed with some of them in person. There are quite a number of persons in this community who, by the use of the water, have recovered the use of a limb or limbs long paralyzed by disease or accident, and past recovery by any other known therapeutic agency. There are also many who have recovered by the same means the use of organs or functions of the system long suspended from similar causes, and involving their enjoyment of the most ardent desires of the afflicted. Many other cures—one of the stomach, another of the liver, another of the bowels, a fourth of the kidneys, and others of the heart, or brain, or nerves—are reported to have been wrought. The general effect of this water in that of the improvement of the sight, which may have been impaired by disease of the eyes, or of the body, affecting the sight. One of the most interesting cures reported to me was that of a female invalid with this water, in a neighboring county, who was blind, deaf and demented, from neuralgia in the head. Another visitor to the Spring, a few days since, informed me of a cure effected by the agency of this water, of an invalid, which partakes largely of the miraculous. It was that of a paralytic, who had not risen from his bed for years, or manifested any volunteer motion of his limbs. He with the arms and neck, whose body and lower extremities were virtually dead—all the functions being performed unconsciously to the sufferer—this man took up his bed and walked after he had drank a dozen bottles of this water, and was at last accounts, doing well, and in a fair way of complete recovery. Still, I must be cautious how I tax the patient I overtask both the patience and credibility of your readers."

The writer gives a number of new and interesting facts of the early history of this Spring. He thus refers to its first remarkable cure:

Among the invalids who resorted to this healing water at this period was one afflicted with that frightful and painfully agonizing disease, the rheumatism, which is so rapidly on the increase in this country, that already its victims, the crippled and disabled, outnumber those of our late grandest civil war, and who, until the discovery of this Spring, were as hopeless and helpless as they. This malady is sometimes called chronic rheumatism, but is no more the rheumatism of our fathers than modern morbus is the cholera morbus of the pestilential valleys of Asia. It is also called rheumatic gout, which, though a better, is not a descriptive appellation of a disease which would be as much dreaded as any of the fabled forms of Greek and Roman mythology, but that it centures its victims for years instead of destroying them immediately. The individual afflicted with it to whom I have referred, presented the most distressing disease I have witnessed, even when he was first attacked, and was an old one. Vain he sought relief from the Spring. He resided in a neighboring town and came to the Spring, he confessed, in spite of himself, even on the benevolent to procure him a supply of water, and for directions as to its use. The water was brought to him from the Spring, with a prescription from the physician who had given it a trial, and who had given it in mockery of its medical properties and of the hopes of the invalid, for it was to the effect that he should only drink a gill at a time, and not more than three gills in the day. He drank of the Spring water which was then (so it is said, and the claims are admitted even by a majority of those who were running after it. But the amazement of the people in Gettysburg, and of the invalid himself, exceeded the amazement of those who had gone to the Spring to see the result of the experiment. He has since gone to his home, in Brier town, a well man. He has since been seen by me, and by my informant, and by many others, walking about his farm, and with the aid of an assistant, to go down stairs and remain the greater part of the day. His [illegible] of which, by several physicians, pronounced to be incurable, and which, a few years ago, was so greatly on the rack, that Ancelon, in its flight, was unable to rest upon the bed, and leaves no doubt that Ancelon, in its heat, was the result of discovery in medical as in other branches of science and in the field of invention. But little discovery is generally, and in the field of invention, but little discovery is generally, and in the field of invention, but little discovery is generally, and in the field of invention, but

EUROPE.

A London dispatch announces that it is now definitely ascertained that the rumor of a triple alliance against the United States is without any foundation.

The elections in Paris and Lyons have resulted favorably to the Anti-Imperial candidates, and it is reported that M. ROCHEFORT has been chosen among others. Much excitement is reported in Marseilles, where the crowd shouted "Vive la Republique," and in Paris, but no disturbances of moment.

GENERAL.

The New-Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Railroad was sold by auction yesterday at New-Orleans, by order of the United States Circuit Court, and purchased for $2,050,000 by the representative of Mr. CHARLES MORGAN. It was announced at the conclusion of the sale that the purchaser intended to extend the road to Sabine at once.

The New-England Labor Reform League met in Convention in Boston yesterday. It was largely attended by prominent reformers. The President, in opening the business, defined the labor-reform creed as free trade, free money, free travel, free transportation and free land; and the resolutions presented and discussed denounced, among other things, the taking of interest and the national banking system, and urged the substitution of Treasury certificates of service for the present Government currency.

Some boys have been arrested in Boston charged with the recent robberies of boxes in the Post Office of that city. All the letters belonging to the Suffolk Bank, twenty-five in number, have been found in a cellar unopened; but a valuable letter taken from the box of the Atlantic Bank is still missing.

The establishment of MILLER & Co., maltsters, at Cleveland, Ohio, was destroyed by fire on Monday night. The loss is $28,000; insurance, $6,000. The loss was mostly by malt destroyed and damaged. The fire is supposed to have originated from some defect in the kiln.

JOHN WEITZ, a prominent produce dealer of Cortlandt Village, N. Y., near Syracuse, committed suicide on Sunday night. Cause, pecuniary embarrassment.

The Coroner's jury in the case of R. K. JAMES, of New-York, whose body was found in the woods below Poughkeepsie, on Monday evening, have rendered a verdict of "death from disease of the heart." He had probably been in the isolated spot where he was found over two days.

A one-armed soldier named JACK GILLIGAN, residing at Mill Creek, near Fortress Monroe, while under the influence of liquor, beat his wife to death on Monday evening. He is now in jail.

JOHN TAYLOR, for many years the farmer of DANIEL WEBSTER, died in Salisbury of consumption on Friday last, aged 69 years. He was buried on the Webster farm, in Franklin, on Sunday. Mr. TAYLOR was an intelligent farmer and an upright citizen, and his relations to Mr. WEBSTER were of a gratifying character.

Over $13,000 of the money and bonds stolen from the money delivery clerk of Harnden's Express, in Baltimore, a few days ago, has been recovered, and the two men arrested have been examined and are now in jail. Their names are GEORGE I. HOWARD, alias GEYER, and EDWARD DEEBEE. They were arrested by one of the Company's detectives while on the way to Wheeling, and some of the plunder was found on their persons.

A Woman's Suffrage Convention is called to meet at Indianapolis on the 14th of June next. Mrs. LIVERMORE, of Chicago, Mrs. CAPT. STANTON, LUCY STONE and others are announced as among the speakers to be expected.

It is reported that a couple of whales have just been caught off East Hampton, L. I., each of which will yield forty barrels of oil.

The New-Orleans Commercial Convention was not in session yesterday, and the delegates spent the day in inspecting the mouths of the Mississippi. The Convention will reassemble today and proceed to business.

The Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce have voted that hereafter freight on wheat, from all points on the river to Milwaukee or Chicago, will be ten cents per bushel, and on flour forty cents per barrel. This arrangement is the result of a meeting of railway and packet men in Chicago on Tuesday last. An arrangement has also been made by which wheat will hereafter be carried from Chicago to Liverpool, via New-York, for thirty cents by rail and twenty-five cents by lake and canal, including all expenses of handling.

A tunnel, similar to the Chicago tunnel, for supplying the City of Cleveland, Ohio, with pure water, is to be commenced there immediately. It is to cost about $200,000.

The retail liquor dealers of Indianapolis, Ind., have agreed to close their saloons on Sundays, and have pledged themselves to see that all other business prohibited by the Sunday laws is stopped on that day.

As the steamer Russia, from LIVERPOOL, was coming up the Bay this morning, she ran into the Austrian ship Pepho Maggiore, from Marseilles, which arrived on the 14th, and was lying at anchor off Bedloe's Island. The ship was struck on the port side and sank in a few minutes, and now lies submerged in water reaching up to her lower yards. The steamer was in charge of a pilot at the time. No lives were lost.

A lecture upon the East was delivered last evening by Bishop SOUTHGATE, at the Church Union Rooms, No. 1,185 Broadway. It dwelt more particularly upon the oppression of Christians in Turkey.

The corner-stone of the Collegiate Dutch Reformed Church, at the junction of Fifth-avenue and Forty-eighth-street, was laid yesterday by Rev. Dr. THOMAS DE WITT, with the usual addresses, hymns and prayer. Rev. Drs. CHAMBERS, LUDLOW and MCNAIR were present, together with a numerous assemblage of both sexes.

The National Woman's Suffrage Association met yesterday, at 2 o'clock, at the Woman's Bureau, No. 49 East Twenty-third-street. A number of new members joined. Miss SUSAN B. ANTHONY delivered a short address, and announced that Miss ANNA DICKINSON would deliver a lecture upon Woman Suffrage on Friday evening next, at the Cooper Institute, under the title of "Nothing Unreasonable."

The firm of SCOTT & MUNSON, storage merchants, of No. 21 Wall-street, were represented yesterday as having absconded on Saturday last with $65,000 in their possession, the proceeds of a secret sale of 75,000 bushels of oats which were placed in their stores in Brooklyn by different parties.

General GEORGE B. The Collegiate North Reformed Dutch Church held its one hundredth anniversary yesterday. Exercises were conducted in the morning and evening. Addresses were made by Rev. Dr. THOMAS DEWITT, Chancellor FERRIS and others.

Another extensive petroleum conflagration occurred at Hunter's Point, L. I., at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The refineries of Messrs. DEVOE & Co. and DAY & CO. were both entirely consumed. The loss can not be far from $200,000.

Cotton was quiet and heavy yesterday. Flour dull and drooping. Wheat a shade firmer, but tamer. Corn active at advanced prices. Oats much lower and slow of sale. Provisions attracted less attention; Pork and Lard closed in favor of purchasers. Groceries were in moderate request; cargo prices of Rio Coffee and quotations for Refined Sugars were a fraction lower. Petroleum was more freely offered and purchased at easier rates. A moderate Freight business was reported.

Our Trouble with England—Mr. Sumner's Speech—The Administration.

The English people have made a strange mistake in giving so much significance to Mr. SUMNER's speech. They seem to regard him as the leader of a party, or as speaking diplomatically in behalf of the Cabinet. They give to his utterances the importance that might be attached to a speech of Lord PALMERSTON or of Mr. GLADSTONE, when one of those statesmen was at once the leader of a party and the head of a Cabinet. Mr. SUMNER, while he fairly and definitely gives utterance to the deep sense of injustice, and to the yet slumbering feelings of indignation justly aroused in the American mind by conduct of the higher classes of the English people, and to a large extent by their Government, during our struggle, is not the leader of a party; he did not speak diplomatically, and he did not assume to speak for the Cabinet, or to define its position. He does not officially or otherwise represent the Government. Nor are the English people much less mistaken in the inferences which they draw from the rejection of the Alabama treaty, which followed the delivery of Mr. SUMNER's speech. The question before the Senate was simply whether the treaty, so hastily negotiated by Mr. JOHNSON, amid so much dinner-party speech-making, most of which was not suited to our national taste or mood, had made proper provision for the adjustment of the matters embraced in it and in dispute between the two nations; and, further, whether there were not other such matters which were really not embraced in the treaty. Mr. SUMNER briefly explained that, as to some matters embraced in the treaty, the provisions for their settlement were not satisfactory or practical, and that some of the grave matters of principle involved in the discussions between the two nations were not embraced at all in the treaty in a way to secure a decision: and hence concluded that it was better that a more carefully-considered and comprehensive treaty should be negotiated and this one be abandoned. Here Mr. SUMNER could of course have stopped; and it is noticeable that as to such portions of his speech, the English journals are not able to find any just ground of complaint. But he did not stop; and the Senate continued to listen.

Mr. SUMNER is an orator, with a strong American heart and head, and he felt, as many—indeed, nearly all Americans,—felt, that the career of Mr. JOHNSON in England had done not a little to give an impression that we had lost our earnestness, if not our self-respect, and that we were not, after all, very much resolved to have our rights in regard to the Alabama and other matters in dispute; he believed that the occasion called for a review of the facts; and he reviewed them in strong language, not at all selected to please John Bull. He told him many unwelcome truths, and he did not adopt John Bull's reasoning in defense of the injury he did us; nor did he say or intend to say all that could be said on John Bull's side of the question. The Senate thereupon proceeded to vote on the merits of the treaty, and not on Mr. SUMNER's speech, nor on his theory of national misnamed or of special damages resulting from such misconduct. This vote left the diplomatic question just where it was before ENVOY JOHNSON ate a dinner or made a speech in England. And General GRANT and his Cabinet in due time will take up the question precisely where Mr. ADAMS left it, with the conceded duty of England to submit to arbitration added; and they are abundantly able and disposed to do justice to our national rights and dignity, as well as to the claims of our citizens for individual losses; and there is no ground for any solicitude or commercial perturbation by reason of the rejection of this treaty.

Mr. SUMNER's speech has several sides. One is that of patriotic sentiment and a national sense of wrong. Another states what is his theory of the damages he thinks an arbitrator ought to give, and what the English Lands and Roebucks and Winchelseas ought to pay. Still another asserts his idea of the apology the English Government ought to make, if decided to be in the wrong in the light of international law as the guide of national obligations.

But let us look at these things in their proper order, and not confuse them. The patriotic sentiment and the swelling utterances of just national indignation, are only adapted, and were intended, for home use, and cannot be put into a treaty. We cannot ask any damages to be paid until we get a decision in our favor; and the treaty rejected provided, and the treaty to be made must again provide, for a reference of the question to be decided to somebody; and from its decision in our favor, and not from our claims alone, these damages must come, if they come at all, as we feel justly confident they will. Besides, in a suit or on arbitration, we do not provide beforehand what the damages are to be—as, for instance, in case of one of Mr. SUMNER's sentences—such as a bull breaking into china-shops, or a flaming steam-tug set adrift in a harbor full of shipping,—but we leave the assessment of damages to the tribunal which decides whether the wrong alleged was really committed, and whether the defendant is liable at all to the plaintiff. Hence it is plain that all he says about the measure of damages, whether well founded or not, is not proper matter to go into the pleadings, or the submission, or the treaty, as facts admitted, but are matters to go into the verdict or finding, when we get one in our favor. Again, suppose England is to make such an ample apology as would fully satisfy Mr. SUMNER; or to take the English version—suppose Queen VICTORIA is to come over here, clad in sackcloth and sprinkled with ashes and leading her progeny in chains; it is yet tolerably clear we cannot demand the apology, or fairly expect the Queen's arrival before the decision in our favor is actually rendered, and probably must wait till we get a certified copy of the document providing for all that is to be done.

Now, a cool consideration of all these matters would have saved our English neighbors a good deal of very undignified and unnecessary heat and alarm, and may prevent some of our own people from committing themselves to very impracticable expectations and saying some very foolish things.

The more the matter is looked at, the more clearly it will be seen that the rejection of the Johnson treaty amounts to only this, that its provisions were not adequate, in the estimation of our Government, to carry into effect a mode of redress upon which the two nations have agreed. Certainly Mr. SUMNER's speech was not intended to be approved as a basis of negotiations, or as a national demand of redress, but was considered a proper assertion of the national feeling, and of the reasons why this Alabama treaty should not be ratified; and it is equally clear that the real questions at issue between the two nations, freed as they were of most of the elements of real danger, by agreeing on arbitration as a means of settlement, are now left for further negotiation at the proper time, though perhaps not immediately. And when that time shall arrive, it cannot be very difficult to agree upon a satisfactory form of submission, which shall not only provide for the adjustment of damages, but for a settlement of principles. We believe this to be the position of the question as viewed by the Senate and the Cabinet.

Other features of Mr. SUMNER's speech are perhaps calculated to mislead some people. He lays great stress, (as a basis of our claims against England,) upon the recognition of the Southern Confederacy. Certainly that unkind, hasty and harsh act of most questionable right is of consequence as indicating the spirit by which England was actuated; yet no one can fail to see that, as France made the same recognition on the same day, and Spain and other European countries very soon after, we can have no special ground of complaint against England, resting on that act as a primary basis of claim. And on the question of damages, it is at least a matter of grave doubt whether, when the claims of all the individuals of the nation for damages are ascertained and satisfied, there will be any claims left unsatisfied; unless Mr. SUMNER can show some national property seized or destroyed. Besides, is there known to international law any recompense to be made for mere incidental national damage, on the part of one nation to another, except a regret and an apology? We are not sure on this point, and shall await some precedent, which Mr. SUMNER surely can find if any one can.

If there is any pecuniary compensation, we demand that our Government insist upon its being rendered to us by England, to the utmost, for England did us an unprovoked, a cruel, and, to her, a disgraceful injury and wrong, for which she ought to make compensation to the uttermost farthing. And we believe General GRANT will accept nothing less.

The agitation in England is little matter of surprise after all. Mr. SUMNER's speech has revived a humiliating and discreditable portion of her national history. She does not like to think of the United States as a Power able to demand its rights, and likely to assert and maintain them if refused. There is always a period, just as the son or the daughter assert and display full equality and a significant tendency to superior power, when the parents hesitate and perhaps lose their equanimity, and forget their dignity, and threaten to do what they dare not and cannot do in view of the changed and still changing relations. England is now in that condition; and a respectful deference and kindness to her mood and her maternal relation, is due from us, her children.

In 1863, when our Minister asked for redress, the demand was not so much as noticed; when the demand was repeated in October, 1865, Lord JOHN RUSSELL omitted to make any answer till Aug. 30, 1865, when he haughtily declined it, with the remark that "Her Majesty's Government declined either to make reparation or compensation for the captures made by the Alabama, or to refer the question to arbitration."

England has come sadly down from that mountain of scorn;—a reference to arbitration has been made;—she is ready now to make compensation;—the only question open is little more than one of details, as to the best means of getting at its amount—an English treaty of arbitration and compensation, unanimously proposed by an English Cabinet has been unanimously rejected by an American Senate! The end is clear and not distant. We are united and strong, with a strong and prudent leader. We should not be surprised at the wrath of the English Press. Let us be prudent and forbearing, firm and just. We have peace and shall continue to have it. And we shall have full compensation and an apology as well, in due time.

A Warm Welcome for Mr. Banks.

The news from St. Domingo must be encouraging to Mr. BANKS and the other members of the excursion party for whose expenses he drew three thousand dollars from the House Contingencies' Fund. The Foreign Affairs Committee, as our readers may remember, propose to visit the Dominicans, and talk over with President BAEZ the terms of annexation. Of course the Washington lawgivers calculate upon an enthusiastic welcome. They go to tell the darkies that this country appreciates their anxiety for admission into the Union; and it is assumed, naturally enough, that they will go into ecstacies over the prospect, and will canonize BANKS & Co. as their deliverers. This, we say, is Mr. BANKS' calculation. Only with these anticipations could he reconcile to his conscience the taking of three thousand dollars for a St. Domingo pleasure trip.

And now comes doleful news. Instead of being delighted, the Dominicans are disgusted. They don't want annexation to the United States, and will not have it at any price. They are so incensed against BAEZ for negotiating in his behalf that they are in arms against him, with a fair prospect of driving him into the sea. The case is not one of simple opposition. Advices represent the feeling as one of hatred to the man and his schemes. We have no doubt that the United States will survive the disappointment. It is provoking, certainly, to find a prize beyond our reach which schemers at Washington have described as ready to tumble into our lap; but we shall probably get over the mortification. We have so many blacks to educate and care for in the Southern States that it may be possible for us to get on without St. Domingo. But what will BANKS do? And what will be the fate of his excursion?

The Republican Party in Tennessee.

The unity of the Republican Party in Tennessee is broken at last. The State Convention at Nashville was unable to get beyond the preliminaries of organization. The mere attempt to proceed to vote provoked a disgraceful disturbance, and the delegates were finally compelled to separate without touching the business which had brought them together. A body so torn by personal animosities and partisan dissensions that it could not succeed in electing a Chairman, could not hope to achieve the nomination of a candidate for the Governorship. Each of the two contending factions has a candidate of its own. And as the Democrats have no thought of putting Mr. ANDREW JOHNSON into the field, the contest will be between Mr. SENTER, who became acting Governor when Mr. BROWNLOW was elected to the Senate, and Mr. STOKES, a dexterous politician, who is understood to be more particularly identified with the better class of Republicans.

For this rupture we were not unprepared. Our Knoxville correspondent, in a letter published on Friday last, alluded to the antagonistic influences at work within the party, and indicated some of the considerations that will govern the final result. An election of judicial officers, to be held on the 27th inst., will throw further light as well upon the motives of the contending sections as upon their relative chances of success. For the Nominating Convention, in April, threw overboard two of the three present Radical Judges of the Supreme Court; and these, again, have joined NELSON, of East Tennessee, in the composition of an opposition ticket. The split, which has now extended to the Executive begun, then, with the Judges, and, by one of those freaks which pertain to an elective judiciary, the disorded functionaries seem likely to be able to determine the fate of the Republican Party in the Gubernatorial election. Cases are before them involving the power of the Executive to exclude from the registration lists citizens whose title to votes was recognized under the first Franchise law. The question affects the political status of thirty or forty thousand citizens, whom BROWNLOW arbitrarily disfranchised, but whose restoration to the privilege of voting seems more than probable. The two Judges whom the April Convention discarded, despite their orthodoxy, may, by their judgment in these cases, secure for themselves thirty or forty thousand new votes and at the same time contribute materially, to the overthrow of the extremists hitherto dominant.

Indeed, the contest between SENTER and STOKES appears to turn principally upon the policy of disfranchisement. The advantage possessed by the former in the control he exercises over the registration of voters will be curtailed if the Supreme Court render the anticipated decision; but the gain arising from the unchecked management of the machinery of the election will nevertheless be considerable. STOKES, on the other hand, has the fanatical element on his side, and will fight bitterly and energetically. We see no reason to believe that, as a matter of conviction, SENTER is more liberal than STOKES, but expediency is understood to have suggested to the former the desirableness of abandoning the policy of proscription which has too long cursed the State, and of restoring the franchise to the large class now denied participation in the Government. What proportion of the Tennessee Republicans are wise enough to favor the change, we have no means of ascertaining, but it is certain that the whole body of enfranchised Democrats will exert their influence in favor of the candidate who most emphatically pledges himself to the adoption of a liberal policy. Out of the row at Nashville, good may come.

There is a moral in the lesson by which the Republicans of Missouri and West Virginia should not fail to profit. They too have relied upon the disfranchisement of opponents as a means of perpetuating their own party strength. Tennessee reminds them that on this basis party unity cannot be maintained.

Southern Commercial Conventions.

The New-Orleans Convention, following on the heels of the Convention at Memphis, repeats the auguries of returning prosperity to the South and returning brotherhood to the whole Union. It was not enough to unfetter the Mississippi by force, and let it run "unvexed to the sea;" it remained to revive in the Southwest that feeling of interest and "part ownership" in the great river, which the war had interrupted. This "victory of peace" is now, apparently, at hand. The significant mottoes which welcomed the delegates to both Conventions, the mingling in organization and in action of Southern merchants and Northern merchants, of Southern Generals and Northern Generals, have furnished an omen of "reconstruction" more potent than any political shibboleth could have supplied. The commercial prosperity of the country lies at the base of all its material prosperity; when all unite in this, the solution of political problems will become wonderfully simplified.

President Woolsey on the Alabama Case.

We published yesterday morning a synopsis of two interesting lectures, on the Alabama case and the English proclamation of neutrality at the beginning of our civil war, delivered by President WOOLSEY to the Senior Class of Yale College. Dr. WOOLSEY is one of the first authorities in this country on the topics which he discussed and on the general subject of international law; yet he expressed opinions in these lectures which will expose him to the sharp censure and bitter denunciation of every paltry demagogue in the land. He did not think that the recognition of the Confederate Government as a belligerent Power by England proceeded from enmity to the Union, or that it was of necessity a hostile act. He ventured to criticise, with a good deal of sharpness, some of Mr SUMNER's positions and dissented wholly from its general tenor and effect.

President WOOLSEY said he wished it "distinctly understood that he had not been bought up by British gold" to take this view of the case. Undoubtedly he would like to have this believed; but, we presume, he is not rash enough to expect that it will be. How can any man,—any American—of common sense expect to be credited with sincerity in holding such sentiments? How can he possibly hold them, unless he is paid for doing it? GOLDWIN SMITH may,—but he is an Englishman,—"only an American pro tem.," as the Tribune styles him, and lives here only, as is well understood, for the sake of a "fat professorship" and the opportunity of corrupting the sentiments of the ingenuous youth of America. He used to be, when at home, a thorough-going Yankee,—rather more of a Yankee, perhaps, than the Yankees themselves. But he has got over all that, and is now generally known to be neither more nor less than a British spy, though what special thing he is to spy out, or how he is to learn anything except by reading the newspapers, we are not aware.

But for President WOOLSEY to agree with GOLDWIN SMITH on nice points of international law, rather than with CHANDLER and SUMNER and the "war horses" of the mighty West, is something that finds its only explanation in the fact that he has been bought over with British gold. Of course he will deny it;—he could not do less than that. But who will put any faith in his denials?

The aroused indignation of the country must look into this matter. It may be necessary to expel Dr. WOOLSEY from the high position he holds as President of one of the leading colleges of the country, and to put in his place some one more thoroughly imbued with the "true spirit of our institutions," than he is. It must not be forgotten that General R. E. LEE, who commanded the rebel armies, is also Professor of something or other in a Southern college. Are not these coincidences somewhat alarming? It may be well for President WOOLSEY and LEE and Professor SMITH to be packing their trunks and securing passage for some more congenial clime.

The Fenwick-O'Connor Case Concluded.

Judge CARDOZO has been compelled to abandon the false position assumed by him in denying an immediate hearing or a release on bail in the habeas corpus case of PEARSALL and O'CONNOR; and the women have been reluctantly admitted to bail. They will be so released to-day, and we shall hear no more of the matter. The arbitrary, unwarrantable and indelicate conduct of Judge CARDOZO, not only in denying a hearing of the case, but in requesting his brother Judges also to decline examining it, have so aroused public feeling and disgusted the legal fraternity that no attempt will ever be made to bring it up again. The moral of the whole proceeding is that the right of habeas corpus cannot be tampered with even by the Judges of this City.

The closing scene in this case was one of the most remarkable ever witnessed in a court-room. We may also add that it was as infamous as remarkable. The attack by the "friend of the Court" upon the counsel of the women, the speech in the same style of invective by Judge CARDOZO, and the immediate adjournment of the Court in order to prevent Mr. TOWNSEND from making a speech in defence of himself, are incidents of legal practice which we trust are very uncommon in this country. They could occur in no other civilized city than New-York—we trust in no other Court than that of Judge CARDOZO.

St. Thomas.

The Daylight, and the Dames in general forget, in their remonstrances regarding the postponement of the St. Thomas Treaty, one of the new ideas working on the American mind. This new idea is that we can annex, protect, or "take" all we want of the Western hemisphere, without the trouble and cost of purchase. If we annex Cuba, protect Hayti, and "take" Mexico, the need of St Thomas as a naval station begins to grow less. True, the question of moral obligation or implied contract remains as before—but that is a question to which nations are apt to pay little heed. We fear that, after all, General RAASLOFF will best find his account in urging the material advantages to be derived from the acquisition of St. Thomas. The London Daily News very well said of the Danish Islands that, "Lying at the very gate of the Caribbean Sea, the Power which holds them will bestride the highway from Europe to the Isthmus of Panama, and command its communications with Mexico, Central America, and the whole West Indies." The London Review remarked that it was "a really important acquisition," far more so than Russian America. And the truth probably is that, if we really must have a naval port in the Gulf, this of St. Thomas will cost less, in the long run, than any others we have fixed our eyes upon. The sum we should pay outright for this spot would perhaps prove to be less than the costs entailed upon us by some other regions which we might "annex" or "protect" apparently for nothing.

MINOR TOPICS.

A series of earnest resolutions in regard to the "maintenance of peaceful and friendly relations between the two great Protestant Powers" of the world, were yesterday adopted by the General Assembly of the Old School Presbyterian Church. All the churches of this country were exhorted to offer fervent prayers to Almighty God for peace, and an affectionate appeal was made to the Christians of Great Britain to "join in like supplications to our common Father in Heaven."

Yesterday was a day of "accidents" in this vicinity. There was a steamboat collision on the East River. There was another collision off the Battery in which the steamship Russia ran down and sank a ship just arrived from Marseilles. There was a boiler explosion at the foot of Wall-street. There was an immense petroleum fire at Hunter's Point. There was a suicide, in which a rich Fifth-avenue gentleman was the victim. Then, as regards the catalogue of murders, outrages, and so forth, the reader must be referred to our local columns. Altogether, it was a day of moving accidents by flood and field.

One Board of the Common Council has voted an appropriation of $20,000 to celebrate the Fourth of July. The other very properly hesitates. What is the use of so large an outlay of money on so useless an object? The sums appropriated for these celebrations have kept increasing from year to year, and it seems probable that the cost of celebrating our independence will soon largely exceed that of achieving it. Everybody understands that much the largest portion of the whole sum goes to favorites about the City Hall.

Our Washington correspondent informed us yesterday that "the President and his Cabinet are entirely in accord on the point, that a foreign war would be extremely disastrous at the present time." Evidently they have not consulted General BUTLER, or else, having consulted him, they don't agree with him in opinion on this subject.

The World is facetious on a serious subject. It talks about the City Hall Park as "one of the lungs of the City." The World is near enough the Park to be aware of its real character,—of the uses it is put to at night, and of the extent to which it is useful as a respiratory organ. The tubercles that cover its outer edges in the shape of apple and peanut stands, and the general odor of nastiness that pervades it, shows that this "one of the City's lungs" is in a very diseased condition. The sooner it can be cleared of its nuisances and a decent building erected upon it for a new City Post Office, the better for everybody.

We are glad to see that steps have been promptly taken toward giving the public the benefit of the law just passed, incorporating the Hansom Cab Company. We are a little disappointed to find that the money for the enterprise is still to be raised, as we had supposed the passage of the law was secured by parties ready and anxious to put the cabs upon the street. But we have no doubt the money will be forthcoming. The Company has been organized, and subscription books to the stock will be at once opened. Properly managed, the enterprise can scarcely fail of success.

We would like to see the District-Attorney, or the Mayor's Marshal, or the Board of Health, take a step in the direction of enforcing the law passed at the last session of the Legislature, which requires that druggists' clerks, or persons who dispense drugs, shall be qualified for their duties according to the terms set forth in the act. We hear now, as we heard formerly, of ignorammuses and careless lads dealing out the most dangerous drugs, puzzling their heads over prescriptions, and every now and then giving the wrong sort of medicine. As we have at last a law on the statute-book upon this subject let us now have it enforced.

We see that an ordinance is pending in the Common Council forbidding any vehicle from stopping on the track of a City railroad. The railroad companies are thus slowly but steadily achieving the complete ownership and monopoly of what were intended to be public streets,—streets as much the property of one class of the people as another. Year by year we have more railroads crossing Broadway; under this now on distance, every omnibus, carriage, cart, or other vehicle must await the convenience of the railway cars before passing up or down the main street. The cars, meantime, may stop as often and as long as they please,—thus stopping the whole tide of traffic and travel on our principal streets at pleasure. We shall soon have a City railroad ring which will own the streets as absolutely as the Erie Railroad ring now own everything and everybody connected with that great work.

It was certainly not the "proper thing" for Captain MILLS of the Police force, to get leave of absence that he might sell tickets for a menagerie in Pennsylvania. But his conduct was rather in violation of taste and propriety, than otherwise offensive. If he be retained on the force after his trial, he ought at least to be warned against indulging in such pastimes hereafter.

Great surprise is expressed by the Commercial that Mr. FISHER, who lost his life by attempting to jump on the front platform of a Broadway railroad car, should have tried to do such a thing when printed orders forbidding it were posted inside the car. If they had been posted outside the car he could have seen them better; or if the Company had enforced their own orders by placing gates on the front platform, so that passengers could not make the attempt; or if drivers would get in the habit of stopping the cars for passengers to get on, there would have been no danger of such an accident. The fact is the printed orders are posted, not to be obeyed, but to screen the Company from blame in case of accident.

A prominent lawyer of Indianapolis has sent us a letter in reference to the recent legislation in Indiana regarding the Divorce laws of that State. He says those laws have not in any way been altered, and that our information on that point was incorrect. The attempt to effect a change was successful in the State Senate, but failed in the other branch of the Legislature, and the law of the State now stands as it was heretofore. It is not surprising that, as a lawyer, our Indiana correspondent upholds the present Divorce law as "not only just, but conducive to good morals." The statute provides that judges shall grant divorces for a certain number of specified causes, and any other cause for which the Court shall deem it proper that a divorce should be granted. This certainly offers latitude enough for dissatisfied husbands and wives, as well as for sharp lawyers and easy-going Judges. The other States of the late Union equally simple facilities to all parties concerned. Indiana is determined to be ahead of any other State—even Connecticut—in the freedom of divorce. Whether this indicates an advance or a retrograde movement in civilization, may be open to some doubt.

A superb edition of the works of THOMAS CARLYLE, in thirty volumes, is undergoing publication in London and New-York. We hope the great Scotchman will include in this edition those of his brief letters on philosophical, moral, political and historical questions which have appeared from time to time in the newspapers. There is nothing in his published writings more striking or suggestive than the two letters—one on the "future state," and the other on the character of NAPOLEON—which have recently appeared in our columns. Though Mr. CARLYLE is himself editing the present edition of his works, we hope that his modesty will not prevent him from including such private letters as these in one of the volumes.

The London Times has got a notable dilemma out of an English law-court, and proceeds to toss these United States on the horns of it, with the feelings natural to a representative John Bull in such a case. The United States going in on the right of the Southern Confederacy, and suing Sir PETER TAFF for the value of certain shoddies sent over by JEFF. DAVIS to be made up by the sartorial baronet! Our contemporary evidently looks on this as a false move in an adversary's game, and makes the most of it. It is a puzzling piece of business, and we have an idea our side will not be able to make a pair of pantaloons out of it, while it must be considered as making a game of cross-purposes which will fairly "bother" us all round.

OBITUARY.

General Joseph C. Briscoe.

General BRISCOE, whose funeral will take place to-day at 3 o'clock, from his late residence, No. 30 Lafayette-place, was born in Ireland, at Willmount, County Kilkenny, in 1824. He graduated with distinction at Trinity College, Dublin, and in 1844 came to the United States, where he was connected as civil engineer with many important public works in the Pennsylvania coal fields. At the breaking out of the war he enlisted in the First New-York Volunteers, and from that time till the close of the struggle he remained in the service of the United States. At the battle of Big Bethel he carried the regimental colors and was wounded in the foot. For his gallantry on that occasion he was commissioned a Lieutenant. In KEARNEY's Division he made the campaign of the Peninsula, and while in charge of the construction of one of the forts at Fair Oaks, attracted the attention of that General by the engineering skill displayed in the work. The General appointed him Engineer Officer of the Division, and he served on KEARNEY's Staff till the death of the latter at Chantilly. Afterward Captain BRISCOE was detailed on the Staff of General STONEMAN, and subsequently upon that of General BURNEY, where he remained—serving occasionally, however, with Generals HANCOCK and FARNUM. When BURNEY was appointed to the command of the Tenth Corps, he appointed Captain BRISCOE chief of staff, with the rank of Major, and strongly recommended him to Governor CURTIN, who gave him the command of the One Hundred and Ninety-ninth Pennsylvania Volunteers. At the capture of Petersburg, Colonel BRISCOE commanded a brigade, and distinguished himself by the storming of Fort Gregg, for which gallant act he was breveted General. At the close of the war he was appointed President of the Examining Board for officers in the regular army, under the rank of Major. As a gallant and courageous officer he was greatly distinguished. He was wounded many times, and served in nearly all the battles of the Army of the Potomac.

The Gettysburg Medicinal Spring.

We publish in other columns this morning an interesting correspondence relating to the medicinal properties of the spring discovered by some wounded soldiers at Gettysburg, during the progress of the great battle which turned back the tide of rebel invasion from the North. The great importance of the discovery is fully set forth in this correspondence. It will be seen that very high medical authority declares the water to be of inestimable value in the treatment of certain diseases, for which no remedy was once supposed to exist. The testimony of physicians, and of patients who have found relief from the use of this water, is very strong in its favor.

Opera Bouffe at the French Theatre.

Mr. GRAU's opera bouffe artists, after a very successful tour throughout the States, re-occupy the French Theatre from Saturday evening. Their representations will only extend over a fortnight, and will end the season. HERVE's "Chilperic" will be produced with great magnificence on Tuesday of next week, and Saturday and Monday, "La Vie Parisienne" will be sung. The sale of seats for the first ten nights commences this morning at the theatre and the branch ticket office.

WASHINGTON.

The Ending Question—General McMahon—The North Pacific Road—A Military Escort for the Engineers Requested—Colored Applicants for Office.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 25.

Only two or three members of Congress are now in the city, and the Departments have settled down to regular routine work. The city is unusually quiet at present, and the only expected events, in a local way, are the forthcoming election in June, and the decoration of the soldiers' graves on Saturday and Sunday next. Saturday will be observed as a Government holiday, and the banks, and business men generally, announce a suspension of trade and traffic on that day.

THE INDIANS.

The accounts from the Indian country for some time past have not been of a very cheerful or encouraging character, and the latest advices from that section express grave apprehensions of serious trouble during the Summer. The Indians are very much discontented, but it is expected that the promptitude with which the Commissary and Quartermaster stores are being hurried forward will allay the dissatisfaction. The recently appointed Agents and Superintendents will be on the ground in a short time, and the Department is in hopes of being able to take such measures as will prevent an Indian war during the Summer.

THE WHEREABOUTS OF MINISTER M'MAHON.

No intelligence whatever has been received at the State Department from Minister McMAHON for some time past. Information was expected by the Mistersippi, but none has reached here yet. Ex-Minister WASHBURNE, who is in the city, is of the opinion that General McMAHON has been killed.

THE NORTH PACIFIC ROAD.

Mr. THOMAS H. CANFIELD, the General Manager of the North Pacific Railroad, had an interview to-day with General SHERMAN on the subject of obtaining a military escort for a surveying expedition of engineers across the continent, to decide on a route for the proposed road. Gen. SHERMAN has not yet decided to grant this request, and will consult with the President and Secretary of War on the subject.

THE SALARY OF MINISTER HARVEY.

Several newspapers are very much exercised relative to the salary of Mr. HARVEY, the late Minister to Portugal. If Mr. HARVEY has not drawn his salary it is his own fault, for the necessary authorization was given by the last Congress.

THE WHITE HOUSE.

There was no Cabinet meeting to-day in consequence of the absence of the President at Annapolis. A large number of strangers who arrived on the morning trains were at the White House, and were considerably disappointed at not being able to obtain interviews.

THE COLORED PRINTER DOUGLASS.

The question of the admission to the Typographical Union of the colored printer DOUGLASS has not yet been settled. In a letter this evening to a delegate to the National Typographical Union, he says that he could not be admitted on account of his color, and that his present application for admission is made in good faith, because he desires to work at his trade in all places wherever it may be profitable. As one of the printers of the country he wishes to have part and parcel in whatever legitimate societies they may organize for the benefit of the craft.

COLORED APPLICANTS FOR OFFICE.

The colored people are becoming as clamorous for office as their white brethren, and scarcely a day passes that does not bring two or three applications for positions to the different departments. They appear to have singled out Commissioner DELANO in particular, for within a week he has received a large number of letters from different sections of the country on the subject. J. M. LANGSTON, of Ohio, urges the appointment of a colored friend of his to a clerkship in the Bureau at Washington.

PERSONAL.

Secretary FISH received a large number of his friends this evening. Nearly all the members of the different foreign Legations in town attended.

Major JAMES H. SMITH, of Chicago has been appointed Judge Advocate vice DENNIS removed.

DESTRUCTION OF THE OLD CURRENCY PLATES.

The following gentlemen have been appointed by Secretary BOUTWELL a committee to superintend the destruction of the old currency plates and dies at the Treasury Department:

Hon. J. N. Thayer, Hon. George A. Halsey and R. D. Moore, Esq., of the Register's Office; S. Guthrie, Esq., of the Treasurer's Office; Farley Hazelhurst, Esq., National Bank Agent, and A. S. Pratt, of Washington.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC ROAD.

The Northern Pacific Railroad Company is making preparations for sending out an exploring party to pass over the entire route from Lake Superior to Puget Sound. THOMAS H. CANFIELD, General Agent of the Company, called on General SHERMAN to-day to arrange for a military escort for a portion of the distance, which will insure a full examination, and enable the Company to determine upon the general character of the line, and place its engineers in the field for a final location of the road.

PERSONAL.

Hon. GEORGE H. PENDLETON was thrown from his buggy in Cincinnati on Saturday, his horse having taken fright, but escaped without other injury than a sprained ankle.

Hon. HUGH McCULLOCH, Ex-Secretary of the Treasury, and his two daughters, are at home in Fort Wayne, Ind., on a visit for a few weeks.

Ex-President JOHNSON has accepted an invitation to be present at a fair in Clarksville, Tenn., on the 26th inst., and is expected to deliver an address.

A Boston paper reports that Rev. GEORGE W. HEPWORTH is an enthusiastic advocate of a free church, a portion of the pews being let at prices according with the means of pew-holders, and at least one-third of the building free to all comers. Such a church, in Boston, he believes would be made a success, and over such he hopes to minister. It is proposed, if possible, to secure some large hall early in the Autumn, and thus form the nucleus of a free church founded on his idea. It is not probable that he will remain in his present position, but his friends will make every effort in their power to prevent his departure from Boston.

Colonel FRANK N. WICKES, of Lockport, N. Y., has been appointed by Secretary BOUTWELL as Special Treasury Agent for the Sixteenth Customs Revenue District, with headquarters at Sitka, Alaska. This district includes the whole line of coast of Alaska, including the Aleutian Islands, as well as the coast of Oregon and California to San Francisco. Colonel WICKES was the second in command of the Russo-American Telegraph Expedition, and is thoroughly acquainted with the coast and its inhabitants. He will leave this city by the middle of June for his post of duty.

EUROPEAN NEWS BY MAIL.

ARRIVAL OF THE CUNARD STEAMSHIP RUSSIA.

By steamship Russia, which left Liverpool May 12, and Queenstown May 14, reached this port yesterday, with advices later by two days than those at hand by the City of Antwerp:

In the sitting of the Lower House of the Reichsrath, May 14, the President, Herr VON KAISERSFELD, delivered the closing speech of the session. He reviewed at considerable length the results obtained by their Parliamentary labors, and said the progress which Austria had made during the last two years was due partly to the continued preservation of peace in Europe, but chiefly to the action of the Reichsrath in pursuing a course of legislative progress and reform. Herr VON KAISERSFELD, moreover, thanked the Government for their pacific policy, and referred to their successful settlement of the finances, the reorganization of the army, the compromise with Hungary, and the firm establishment of the Constitution. The House received the President's speech with repeated marks of approval, and at its conclusion three cheers were given for the Emperor. Prince COLLOREDO delivered the final speech of the session to-day in the Upper House. He described the essential laws based on the principle of Dualism as the chief fruits of the expiring session.

In the sitting of the Lower House of the Hungarian Diet, May 13, four different drafts of an address in reply to the speech from the Throne were introduced. The Committee's draft welcomes the domestic reforms proposed in the speech from the Throne, and based on the Constitution of 1867. It further expresses a wish for the removal of the present military organization in the military frontier provinces, as well as for the incorporation of Dalmatia with Hungary, and adds a hope for the preservation of peace in Europe. The draft proposed by M. PISKA on behalf of the Left Centre, and that presented by M. SIMONYI in the name of the Extreme Left, ask for a complete remodeling of the Statu Constitution and the maintenance of the Constitution of the Croats. They also condemn the system of the delegations and the unity of the army. M. SIMONYI's draft, moreover, disapproves the attempt to commence between Austria and Hungary, recommends non-intervention in the East and in Germany, and manifests regret at the exceptional measures adopted by the Government in Bohemia. The fourth draft proceeds from the Servian party, and is introduced by M. MIRATICH. It demands reconstruction in a federative sense, satisfaction of the claims of the Servian nationality, and the fulfillment of the wishes of the Christian population in the East.

At a public banquet held in Copenhagen May 10, General BLAHRAM, Minister of War, confidently expressed a hope that the sale of the Island of St. Thomas to the United States would be ratified by the Senate as soon as the history of the negotiations should be made sufficiently clear. The delay hitherto experienced was to be attributed to the differences between Ex-President JOHNSON and Congress. Mr. SUMNER was in favor of ratification.

According to accounts from St. Petersburg, the continued indisposition of the Emperor ALEXANDER is beginning to cause uneasiness to his medical men. His Majesty, it has been stated, was a few weeks back causing a bridge in an open carriage with his eldest son, when the horses took fright, and dashing across the footpath were only prevented by the parapet from falling with the vehicle into the river. The shock was however, so violent that fears were entertained that the Emperor might have suffered some internal injury, and since the accident he has been unwell. On Easter Sunday the usual ceremony of congratulations after the midnight mass had to be omitted. His Majesty was indeed present at the funeral service of the Greek Minister, Count DE MITXALAS, and of Admiral MOUCHINOFF, but on his return to the Winter Palace, was obliged to go to bed. The robust constitution of ALEXANDER II., however, leads to the hope that by proper attention his indisposition may not lead to any serious results. The belief is that the Crimea will try a cure at one of the German watering places.

APPAIRS IN FRANCE.

Napoleon and the Nation—Present Physiognomy of the Capital—Election Prospects—The Rural Constituents and Their Intelligence.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Friday, May 14, 1869.

NAPOLEON III. believes that during his reign he has given to France sufficient of material and social progress to entitle him to the gratitude of his subjects; and he also believes, unfortunately, for in this he is totally mistaken, that he has also given to France sufficient of political and moral progress to entitle him still further to the love and respect of his people.

What, then, must be his disappointment at the present attitude of the intelligent part of the French people? For, of course, he knows as well as anybody that he holds the peasantry by ignorance and the power of the priesthood. What must be his chagrin to see that all that class of his subjects who have access to intelligence, in spite of the Government and the priesthood, that is to say, the residents of the large cities, have turned against him, and savagely cry under his nose that they intend to overturn him whenever they can.

Look at the physiognomy of the capital at the present moment—and Lyons, Marseilles, Bordeaux and Lille are in the same situation. The candidates for the Chamber of Deputies who declare themselves "irreconcilable" to the Empire, who openly avow their determination to overthrow the Empire, who, to quote the words of the eloquent RANCEL, candidate in the Third District of Paris, are determined henceforth to "refuse the presence of ANTAXERXES," are the candidates most applauded by the populace, and appear to stand the best chance of being elected.

What must be the despair of the Emperor after twenty years of manipulation of the position, to find himself obliged, as he is at present, to double and treble the protective force about his person to prevent assassination! And this time they are not Italians, seeking the life of the "murderer" of their country, but Frenchmen, the men he thought he had taught better things.

Little by little the excitement has increased until for two nights past bands of three or four hundred sans culottes have been able to march through the streets singing the "Marseillaise" and the "Lampions," breaking windows and street-lamps and threatening to hang the policemen who offered resistance to the lamp-posts. Such is the state of effervescence in the dangerous classes that the leaders of the Republican Party are in turn getting alarmed, for they see the bourgeoisie looking on with indifference, if not accepting the terrible propositions of the dangerous classes, so rapidly does the spirit of resistance light up under oppression. In the Seventh District, in which the extreme "Reds" appeared to be carrying everything before them, M. JULES FAVRE, by the advice of the moderate Republicans, who are getting alarmed at the locks of things, has offered himself as a candidate, in the hope of saving the district from falling into the hands of either HOCHEFORT or CANTAGREL, the two "Reds" who hold the inside track. So, too, the old fogies of the Republican Party, who were at first opposed to the reflection of several of the out-going Deputies of Paris, CARNOT, GARNIER-PAGES, GUEROULT, EMILE OLLIVIER have at last rallied to their support, for fear that the violence of the men who are opposing them, if elected, would compromise the progressive growth and the future prospects of the Republican Party.

The Government has not announced, and does not probably intend to announce, any candidates for Paris, because ashamed to put on paper the crushing majority that would be cast against them. The Government people even, that is to say, the employes of the Government—for there are no longer any supporters of the Government in Paris but those who gain their living by it—will cast their votes for such moderate Republicans as OLLIVIER, THIERS and FAVRE, in order to keep out the "irreconcilable" men like RANCEL and HOCHEFORT, and GARNIETTA and JULES FERRY. Of two evils, they will choose the least.

But the impetus has been given. RANCEL and GARNIETTA, at least, from among the brilliant orators of the Radical Party, will certainly go into the Legislature from some one of the districts in which they are standing for election, and they have promised their supporters here and at Marseilles and at Bordeaux, to demand boldly in the Chamber a change of Government and Constitution. The new generation—for the terrible mob that went singing the "Marseillaise" last evening through the Latin quarter was composed mostly of boys—have had a taste of liberty these last few days, and will not forget it. They tied a policeman to a fence; they threw another one over a fence, and that was enough to start new ideas, and to mark a new era in the minds of men who had not dared to even think of such feats of rebellion for twenty years past.

The whole community will be poisoned by this election, and the revolution this time will not go backward. The Government cannot even hope for indifference. We must have liberty or go back to the horrid repressive measures of 1852—one or the other. It is liberty or the chassepot. It only needed two "tribunes" like GARNIETTA and RANCEL to show the new generation where they stood, and to set their hearts on fire. And if their patriotic appeals for liberty have done no good for the Republic, they will have at least forced the Empire into liberty, for the conservatives of every party now demand this as the only possible issue from the present situation. LOUIS NAPOLEON, with his natural good sense, must therefore move forward and not backward, and we shall look soon to enjoy as much liberty as the surrounding nations.

As a sample of the ignorance of the country people and the dodges resorted to by candidates to catch their votes, here is a circular addressed by M. BELMONTET, a particular friend of the Emperor, to his constituents: "I have lately received a number of petitions addressed to me by certain lark-shooters in my district, and have in consequence made an application in their behalf to the Prefect, from whom I have obtained a prolongation of that sport for a fortnight. They are well pleased, and so am I. Long live the Emperor! L. BELMONTET, Deputy of the Peasantry."

After that we may withdraw the ladder! There is nothing better in the history of electioneering documents. It is a good thing for M. BELMONTET that there is not in his district a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

The State of Colombia—Stabbing of the Boys—The Attack upon the Ex-United States Rebel Officers in Carthagena a Year Ago—The Conduct of the Colombian President.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PANAMA, Monday, May 17, 1869.

Our last dates from Bogota, the capital of the Republic, left the Cushing Canal Treaty still under discussion in the Senate, in a modified form. It is not supposed, however, it will be ratified.

There has been a fusion between the Conservatives and the Mosquera portion of the Republicans or Reds, recommended officially by all the Conservatives in Congress, in which it is agreed to support General MOSQUERA, now in exile in Lima, for President of Colombia. This insures the election of the General, unless the military of the present administration are willing and strong enough to prevent it.

One hundred more troops from Bogota arrived at Panama on the 6th inst., making about 250 the national Government now has in garrison here. The supposed object of this inroad upon us is to prevent the State from voting for MOSQUERA.

General CORREDOO, Governor of the State, is still in the Province of Chiriqui, whither he went to adopt measures to conciliate the inhabitants, whom he so lately attacked and subdued with his military. If report, however, speaks true, he is taking a queer way to effect his purpose, for his officers have sprung so many new taxes upon the population that the best portion of it is leaving for Costa Rica and other Central American States.

On the 9th instant the election for Senators and Representatives to Congress took place in this city. Only 126 votes were polled, about 100 of them by the military, who, of course, gave their voices in favor of the Government candidates.

Señor MIGUEL SAMPER, Minister of Hacienda, who signed the Cushing Canal treaty on the part of Colombia, has resigned, as has also Señor PAREJA, Minister of Foreign Affairs. Señor ANTONIO M. PRADILLA succeeds Señor PEREZ.

The question of impeachment of the President of the Republic and his Ministers, recommended in the Committee's report to the House of Representatives, was brought to a solution by the House voting the same to be laid on the table. We have also heard, from a reliable private source, that a later date the House gave a vote of approbation of the Government's conduct in October last in causing the arrest of Governor IGNACIO GUTIERREZ VERGARA of Cundinamarca.

The war steamer Bogo, formerly the R. R. Cuyler, of New-York, and which was purchased by the late Colombian Minister at Washington for Peru, (under the pretence that she was for the Colombian navy,) sunk in the harbor of Carthagena on the 20th ultimo. You will recollect that about a year since some United States rebel officers of the Bogo were attacked in the streets of Carthagena, and one of them was killed and one or two others badly wounded by Colombian military officers and Police. A correspondence on the subject between Mr. SEWARD and President ACOSTA, of Colombia, appears in the Bogota official paper, in which General ACOSTA admits that the persons assaulted and tried for the crime, were really the assassins, and that they only escaped punishment because of the state of popular opinion at Carthagena among the class from whom the jury were selected. It is worthy of note that the accused, whom General ACOSTA styles "assassins," are now occupying the same positions in command of the State troops at Carthagena that they occupied in the national force at the time of the murders. General ACOSTA undertakes to throw blame on Mr. HANABERG, the United States Consul at Carthagena, because he did not, on the commission of the crime, "make complaint to the authorities, and counsel with them, instead of representing it to the United States Minister at Bogota," when he, ACOSTA, well knows that it was the authorities themselves who instigated the crime, and to counsel with them would have been to counsel with the real assassins. The real fact is—and it would be more manly to confess it—the national Government is completely powerless to redress foreign grievances, when redress is opposed by popular opinion in any of its States.

The small-pox, introduced here, probably, by passengers from San Francisco, and which has carried off hundreds of our negro population the past three months, is visibly decreasing.

The United States gunboat Gettysburg is at Aspinwall. No United States vessel at Panama. The British corvette Chanticleer is at Taboga in this bay, with considerable small-pox on board. The British corvette Pylades is here to relieve her.

South America—Excess of Expenditures Over the Revenue in Peru—The Statesmen of War with Bolivia—Insurrection Among the Mountain Indians of Guatemala.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PANAMA, Monday, May 17, 1869.

Dates from Valparaiso are only up to the 17th, and from Callao and Lima to the 26th April. The news is of but little interest. In Peru the yellow fever was abating. Some naval officers, mixing them the notorious HOCHEFORT, had attempted a revolt against the present Government, but were arrested before they could do any harm. The revenue for the year in Peru amounts to $44,600,000, the expenses to $61,500,000. Of the revenue, $22,000,000 is for guano. Government will have to curtail now, as the good guano is nearly all gone, and the other is nearly worthless.

From Chili there is nothing new, except that the British Steam Company's subvention for running vessels through the Straits of Magellan to Southampton via Montevideo, Rio Janeiro, &c., has been extended to five years.

In Bolivia the yellow fever has disappeared. The President lately ordered a Civilian to be shot for very offensive language used against the said President at a banquet. Rumors that Bolivia is marching on Peru with an army of 12,000 men to revenge some fancied insult, are still rife.

From Guatemala we have dates to the 8th inst., from Salvador to the 11th, Nicaragua to the 12th, and Costa Rica to the 13th. All the States were quiet. Reports, however, obtained that the mountain Indians in Guatemala had risen against the Government. At Acajutla the American schooner Milton Badger was discharging. At La Libertad the American bark Pacific had arrived from Valparaiso, with general cargo. At La Union the American schooner Piero Marie was discharging. At Amapala the American schooner Belle Bond was up for Mexico. At Corinto, Nicaragua, the American bark M. E. Robert was loading sugar and coffee for San Francisco. The American schooner Emilia was at Punta Arenas, Costa Rica.

THE PRESBYTERIANS.

The Proposed Basis of Reunion Rejected by the Old School Presbyterian.

Old School—Fifth Day.

After a half hour of devotional exercises, followed by the reading of the minutes, MARTIN RYERSON, Esq., offered the following resolutions relative to war with Great Britain. Judge RYERSON of New-Jersey, believes that there is danger of some slight matter now so inflaming the minds of our people as to hurry us into a war with England:

Whereas, The existing state of feeling between this country and Great Britain is a cause of profound regret and grief to all who desire to maintain peaceful and friendly relations between these two great Protestant powers; and

Whereas, There are no causes of difference but such as ought to be peacefully adjusted, (while a war between them would do incalculable injury to the cause of civil and religious liberty, would retard, perhaps for generations, the great work of converting the heathen, and be one of the greatest calamities that could befall our race; and as we believe that a vast majority of our citizens would deplore such a war; and as, above all, it is one of the highest duties of the Christian Church to labor and pray for peace and good will toward men;) therefore

Resolved, That this General Assembly would earnestly exhort all Christians under its care to offer fervent prayer to Almighty God that He would, by His Holy Spirit, enlightten and influence the understandings and hearts, and would as guide and control the counsels of the rulers and people of both nations, that all misunderstandings may be speedily settled, and a lasting peace preserved. And this Assembly would affectionately and earnestly appeal to the Christian people of Great Britain and Ireland to join in like supplications to our common Father in Heaven.

Resolved, That a copy thereof be sent to the other General Assemblies of the Presbyterian Church now in session in this City, with a request that they unite with us in our efforts to preserve peace between these two Protestant nations, a war between which might, and probably would, involve the whole civilized World.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Rev. S. MATTOON, from the Committee on Foreign Missions, presented the report of the Board. It is very long and not of general interest. The receipts from all sources have been $323,697 82; the expenditures $340,766 42; leaving a balance against the Treasury of $9,260 60.

Rev. Dr. IRVING, Secretary of the Board, assured the Assembly that great success is now attending the labors of our missionaries.

Rev. Dr. W. A. P. MARTIN, of Canton, China, said the debt of the Board has hung about the neck of the Church as the albatross hung on the neck of the ancient mariner. Let us remove it as MEHEMET ALI has removed the dryness of Egypt. He caused twenty millions of trees to be planted, and has increased thus the number of days of rain by fifteen or twenty. So let every pastor plant a tree to collect the dew and concentrate the clouds of blessing. Our house fund is, I know, very important, but every effort for a foreign nation returns in blessings on ourselves. We are one in heart in this land, whole nations of Chinese. They will fill up the vacant places. Shall they be heathens or Christians? It is for you to say.

In the midst of this discussion on foreign missions the Assembly adjourned, and closed with a prayer by Dr. R. P. WHARTON.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Rev. J. K. WIGHT presented a long report on the subject of supplementing ministers' salaries.

REUNION OF NEW AND OLD SCHOOLS.

The Stated Clerk, Rev. Dr. MCGILL, read a report containing the answers of the Presbyteries to the overture of the last Assembly, offering to them a basis of reunion. It was found that the basis prepared by the last Assembly was rejected by a large majority.

EDUCATION.

Rev. Dr. ROBERT HAMILL, Chairman of the Committee on Education, submitted the report of the Board.

A JOINT COMMUNION SEASON.

The Committee recommended the following:

The Committee on Devotional Exercises, through Dr. MURRAY, recommended a joint communion service, on the part of the Assemblies, on Friday afternoon, in this house, at 2 o'clock. The Moderator of the New School body, Dr. FOWLER, to preside, and Dr. JACOBUS to assist him; Sacramental prayer and distribution of the bread by Dr. SPRING; an address by Dr. JAS. H. SHAW; prayer and administration of the cup by Dr. TAYLOR, of Cincinnati; concluding address by Dr. ANDERSON, of Indiana. The following Elders are to take part, viz.: J. H. McCAMPBELL, of Indiana; WM. STRONG, of Pennsylvania; MERTIN RYERSON, of New-Jersey; DAVID BURNS, of California; MORRIS PATTERSON, of Philadelphia, JOHN L. KNIGHT.

The judicial case of HYDES' complaint against the Synod of Illinois was then resumed. This case involves the constitutional point of whether, in a church, the question can be asked once in three years, Are the elders unanimous?

Pending the settlement of this case, the Assembly adjourned to Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

The New School—Fifth Day.

Rev. Dr. FOWLER, the Moderator, called the assembly to order at 9:30 o'clock.

A POINT OF DISCIPLINE.

Rev. Dr. HENRY DARLING, of Albany, Chairman of the Committee on Church Polity, presented that Committee's report on an overture from the Presbytery of Des Moines, Iowa, asking for information as to a point of discipline. It appears that a church in that Presbytery was dissolved some time ago, and that letters were given to its members allowing them to join any other Evangelical Church they saw fit. One member kept his letter lighting in his pocket, joined no other Church; the inquiry was whether, under the circumstances, this member was liable to discipline? The Committee reported an answer in the affirmative, assigning as a reason, that every member was responsible to some Church, and that, this particular church having been dissolved, the Presbytery was the proper body to take the matter in charge, and that the member was clearly liable to discipline for not having united himself with some other Church. The report was affirmed.

A NEW SYNOD.

The same Committee recommended that the Resolution contained in the overture for the creation of a new Synod, to be known as the Synod of Kansas, be granted. It is to consist of the Presbyteries of Kansas, Smoky Hill and Humboldt. The report was adopted. [Thirteen young graduates of the Union Theological Seminary settled in this region about two years ago. There were three in Kansas, one in Smoky Hill and ten in Humboldt. The Gospel offer of a Presbytery and ten more so encouraged, forever, that there are now in the same region three presbyteries and twenty-six ministers, and the formation of the new Synod is natural.]

Being a Further business on the morning docket, the Assembly then adjourned to five o'clock P. M., in order to give the Standing Committees an opportunity to report.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon proceedings began at two o'clock, the Moderator presiding.

REUNION.

Rev. Dr. FISHER, from the Special Joint Committee on Reunion, appointed last year, and composed of five members from each church in the Presbyterian communion, reported that that Committee met at the Mission House in Philadelphia, on the 14th of last April, and resolved that union among the three branches of the Church is highly desirable, if the way for it be clear. Dr. FISHER then read the following propositions, unanimously agreed to by the Committee, as a basis for the contemplated union:

ARTICLE 1. The Old and New Testaments, generally acknowledged to be the inspired word of God, and the only infallible rule of faith and practice.

ART. 2. The Westminster Confession of Faith, as the same has been modified by the churches now represented in the General Assembly, shall be received and adhered to as containing the system of doctrine contained in the Holy Scriptures.

ART. 3. The United Church shall receive and adopt the Presbyterian form of Church Government.

ART. 4. It is the will of God that the Book of Psalms be used by His Church in His worship to the end of the world, and the united body shall, at the earliest practicable day, prepare as faithful and acceptable a version of the Psalms as may be, for use in the churches. Any of the churches desiring to use the Paulina ordinarily, in the service of song, shall always have the right, unchallenged, so to do.

It was then resolved by the Committee that these propositions be submitted to the various Assemblies for action, and, if approved by them, that a Committee be appointed from each to meet in Pittsburg, Penn., on the first Wednesday in August, 1869, to take into consideration such further questions as may be decided in order to a formal consummation of the union of the bodies represented.

The report was referred to the Standing Committee on Bonds.

PRESBYTERIAN PUBLICATIONS.

Rev. Dr. THOS. S. HAMILTON, of New-York, from the Committee on Publication, presented the report of that Committee, congratulating the Church on the rapid advance of the religious publication interests; that in other churches large publishing interests have proved unwieldy, but that, in this body, there is a spirit of harmony which renders such trouble by no means imminent. It was commended, also, the part of laymen and pastors; refers especially to the claims of Sabbath Schools, and recommends that sub-committees be appointed to better at hand the diffusion of Sabbath-school literature.

The questions involved in the report were debated at some length, but the report was finally adopted.

BOARDS AND CHURCH LEGAL MATTERS.

Rev. Dr. WEBB, from the Judicial Committee, reported on the memorial from T. C. CONNOLLY, of Washington, D. C., as to an act of alleged injustice against a church member of that place, and a report of the whole affair (a civil suit) has been published in the newspapers, and recommend that the material be returned to the author, and the matter dismissed. The report was adopted.

Rev. Dr. PORTER was then introduced, and, after a few remarks, presented to the Assembly on behalf of the Reformed Synod a memorial calling for a national council of all Evangelical denominations, to meet in this City in October next.

Rev. Dr. CROSBY moved that the memorial be referred to a special committee of three. Carried. The Chair appointed Rev. Dr. HOWARD CROSBY, of New-York, Rev. Dr. GEORGE H. MATWELL, of Cincinnati, and Hon. JOS. ALLISON, of Philadelphia, as such Committee.

The hour of 5:30 having arrived, the Assembly adjourned to 9:30 A. M. to-day.

Decoration Day—Letters from General McClellan and Governor Hoffman.

The following letters have been received by the Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Grand Army of the Republic:

HOBOKEN, May 19, 1869.

Colonel M. H. Beaumont, Chairman Exec. Com. G. A. R.:

COLONEL: I have received your very gratifying invitation to participate in the ceremonies in honor of our fallen comrades on the 30th inst. I am truly very sorry that it will not be possible for me to attend, and I beg that you will express to the gentlemen of the Committee my sincere thanks for their kindness in remembering me on this occasion. Although it will not be in my power to be with you on the 30th in person, you may be assured that my thoughts will then be turned to the same subject that occupies you. I am sure that no one participating in the ceremonies can feel a deeper interest in them than I do, for no one can more highly venerate the memory of our fallen comrades or more fully appreciate the grandeur of their services than

Your obedient servant,

GEO. B. McCLELLAN.

STATE OF NEW-YORK, EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, ALBANY, May 21, 1869.

MY DEAR SIR: I have received the invitation of your Committee to be present and participate in the Floral Memorial celebration of our comrades on the 30th of May inst. I most sincerely regret that the nature of my engagements precludes the possibility of my visiting the city at the time specified. If it were in my power to do so, I should most gladly join you in commemorating the bravery and patriotism of our dead heroes. Living, all that they had to give—courage, high resolve, strong arms, brave hearts—they gave to us in our need. Dead, by their example they teach us to be better citizens to love our country more, to prize more highly all its blessings, to work more earnestly for its welfare and its honor. As full of hope as any now among us, with like ambitions, with all the fire of life and youth still strong within them, these men, leaving life, not less but country more than we, went from your midst, left loved ones behind, and died that their land might live. Once more is history repeated. The yawning gulf that stood so wide before us has closed, but in its depths are hid forever the best treasures of the Republic. To cherish the memory of these patriot dead, to honor their graves, to strew their graves with flowers, brings honor to ourselves, not to them.

Very truly yours,

JOHN T. HOFFMAN.

Captain FRANK H. JORDON, Secretary.

More Small-Pox at Quarantine.

The City of Antwerp, with 1,073 passengers, the Nebraska, with 1,366 passengers, the Kedar, with 670 passengers, and the Codar, with 200 passengers, have been detained at Quarantine on account of having small-pox on board. The patients, mostly Swedish emigrants, have been sent to Hoffman's and Swinburne's Island. No deaths are reported as having occurred on these vessels during the voyage.

The Cuban Insurrection.

It is reported in this City, by well-informed persons, that the Spanish Government will soon issue a decree requesting that all citizens of the realm or its colonies now residing in foreign countries, and who may own property in Cuba, shall, within a stated period register their names with the nearest Consul and take the oath of allegiance to the Spanish country; and a failure to comply with the order will render all such property liable to seizure.

Farewell Reception.

Last evening the Brooklyn Art Association gave a very pleasant reception at the Academy of Music to Mr. GUIGNOUX, the retiring President of the Society, who is shortly to leave the country for a protracted residence in Europe. Mr. GUIGNOUX will spend much of his time in Paris in the execution of a large number of important commissions.

The Indiana Divorce Laws not Changed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Saturday, May 22, 1869.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

On the 4th of the present month a friend mailed to me from New-York a printed slip, cut, as he said, from your paper of that date, relative to a change in the Divorce laws of Indiana. Your correspondent was either ignorant of what he was writing about, or purposely deceived you and, perhaps, many of the readers of your paper. The fact is, that the Divorce laws of Indiana have in no way been modified since 1860. The late Legislature passed no act upon the subject of divorces. Bills not unlike those mentioned by your correspondent passed the Senate, but after discussion on their merits, failed in the House. Like a majority of the late House of Representatives, the writer of this believes the Indiana law relative to divorces to be not only just, but conducive to good morals. That judgments in divorce cases are often obtained fraudulently cannot be denied; but are not judgments in many other cases often procured in the same way? If men will do wrong, does it necessarily follow that the law is at fault?

The following are the causes laid down in the statute for which divorces shall be granted, viz.: adultery; impotency; abandonment for one year; cruel treatment; habitual drunkenness; conviction, subsequent to marriage, of an infamous crime; and any other cause for which the Court shall deem it proper that a divorce should be granted. It will be observed that the statute requires the Court to grant divorces for the causes above mentioned, and for any other cause, &c. This provision gives a discretion to the Courts which many of the Judges exercise very liberally toward petitioners for divorce. For example, one Judge may regard intemperance on the part of a husband sufficient cause for granting a divorce on the application of the wife, though such intemperance should fall far short of "habitual drunkenness." Failure on the part of the husband to make suitable provision for his family, has been deemed a sufficient cause, when the wife neglects her offspring and household duties. In short, divorces will be granted for almost any cause, which is of itself sufficient to make the married life of the petitioner an unhappy one, especially where the evidence shows there is no probability of change or reconciliation.

The cause for divorce need not have occurred in this State; it may be sufficient if it occurred in a foreign State, where the parties resided. (10 Ind., 436.)

Although the party applying for a divorce must be a resident, &c., at the time of filing his complaint, it is not necessary that he should be a resident at the time of trial. (16 Ind. 444.)

As to the effect of our Divorce laws upon public morals, it is, I think, enough to say that South Carolina, the only State in the Union where a divorce has never been granted, found it necessary to enact a law regulating how much property a man should give his concubine. A learned South Carolina Judge from the Bench said: "In this country, where divorces are not granted for any cause whatever, we commend not men of excellent character unfortunate in their marriages, and virtuous women abandoned or driven away homeless by their husbands, who would be doomed to a life of celibacy and solitude if they did not form new connections which the law does not allow, and who make excellent husbands and wives still." That is, in South Carolina, a husband or wife who can not be legally divorced may separate, form unlawful connections, and still be virtuous wives and husbands. Truly yours, &c.,

EDWIN A. DAVIS,

Attorney at Law, &c.,

Indianapolis, Ind.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Yesterday was another dull day at the salerooms, but three sales were made, and they were quite unimportant. City sales are almost ended for the season, but in the country they will be held for some time to come. Some of the auctioneers' books contain particulars of sales yet to be made, extending almost to the first of July. Many of them are not yet advertised, in fact the arrangements are not in all cases yet completed, but they are rapidly being finished, and in due time the public will be informed of them. The suggestions made in the TIMES of Monday last have attracted the general attention of landowners, and will have a good effect. The auctioneers have long understood the little annoyance attending almost every out-of-town sale, but it was difficult to convince the owners. They, in many instances, having never seen a country sale before their own, did not understand the attention to detail necessary to the entire success and pleasantness of such sales, and thought the extra expenditure quite unnecessary. This, of course, does not apply to all cases; there have been some few honorable exceptions. But there is room for improvement for them all. Owners, before they try a sale, should make up their minds to follow implicity the advice of their auctioneers, who, from their greater experience, must best understand what should be done. They must also understand that it is absolutely necessary to expend a considerable amount of money. Advertising, printing, bill-posting, lunch, car-fare, &c., &c., must be paid. A false economy here is foolish; a few dollars saved gives the whole affair a skimped and beggarly appearance. People go to it with the idea that it is a cheap arrangement throughout, and bid accordingly. If, though, the advertising is well and prominently done, the lunch good, and the other matters liberally attended to, the property gains additional value in their eyes, they see it through more pleasant glasses, and the bidding is generally good. Some of the sales previously held have been very creditable to both owners and auctioneers, and the results have been correspondingly satisfactory; but among those yet to come off are some which will, we are assured, in these respects completely outdo all previous ones. There is every probability that they will be successful, but it is impossible to know what the result will be, even an hour before the sale. Some which commenced well have ended poorly, and others which at the start were so bad that it was almost thought advisable to discontinue them, improved as the sale went on, and at the close showed very handsome results.

To-morrow, Messrs. MULLER, WILKINS & CO. have an extensive sale of Rye Beach property, situate on Long Island Sound, in the village of Rye, Westchester County, N. Y., and consisting of twenty-three and a half acres of first quality land, four of which is a grove of fine growth, balance in lawn and under cultivation. This property has a water front of some 900 feet, with a fine sand beach, and has long been a celebrated resort for bathing, boating and fishing. The location is one of the most healthy in Westchester County, the neighborhood unexceptionable; churches and good schools. The time from New-York is one hour by the New-Haven Road, the trains of which stop at Rye some twelve or fifteen times daily, and on the completion of the Harlem and Portchester Road, the time from New-York will be much shortened. The improvements consist of a first-class frame dwelling, good stable and carriage-house and other outbuildings. Carriages will be ready to convey persons to the premises on the arrival of the 11:30 train. Maps and full particulars may be obtained at the auctioneers' office, No. 7 Pine-street.

The following will be offered at the Exchange Salesroom to-day:

Messrs. MULLER, WILKINS & CO. will sell the seven brick front houses and lots situate on the east side of and known as Nos. 138, 139, 140, 142, 144, 146 and 148 Suffolk-street. Lots together, 206.10x100 feet.

The three-story high-stoop brown-stone-front house and lot situate on the north side of Fifty-seventh-street, 122.6 feet east of First-avenue. The house is 16.8x50; surroundings are first-class; Fifty-seventh-street is 100 feet wide, and paved with Belgian pavement; lot 16.8x100.6.

Mr. JOSEPH MCGUIRE has, at 4 o'clock P. M., on the premises, an adjourned sale of the following described Prospect Park property: Seven lots south-west corner of Ninth-avenue and Seventeenth-street, with house and stable. The ground is beautifully laid out with shrubbery, flowers and a great variety of the most choice fruit trees. They are but two blocks distant from the entrance to the Park, and command a fine view of the adjoining country, which makes it very desirable as an investment; for healthfulness and scenery is unsurpassed. From it can be seen seven cities, Prospect Park, Greenwood Cemetery, Sandy Hook and the Atlantic Ocean for many miles.

HEAVY DEFALCATIONS.

A Brooklyn Bank and a Wall-Street House Involved.

The Late President of the Atlantic Bank Misapplies its Funds.

Alleged Fraudulent Sales of Consignments by Messrs. Scott & Munson.

ATLANTIC BANK EXCITEMENT.

The sounds of sad but eloquent voices proclaiming glowing eulogies on the character of WM. C. RUSHMORE, one of the victims of the recent Long-Island Railroad calamity, have scarcely died on the ears of the people of Brooklyn when they are astounded by the sudden discovery that at least some transactions of the deceased banker were not conducted on strict business principles, however honorable his intentions and desires may have been. Mr. RUSHMORE, it may be remembered, was President of the Atlantic Bank, and the commercial community, as well as all who knew him in other relations, had long placed the greatest confidence in his honor and integrity. That anything should have been discovered calculated to throw a cloud over his memory is cause for profound regret on the part of multitudes of citizens. It appears, however, that facts which could not be suppressed speak incontrovertibly, and the bank directors have been compelled to make public as much of the truth as was necessary to conciliate the depositors and stockholders.

A few days after the funeral of Mr. RUSHMORE the directors of the bank assembled together for the purpose of inquiring into the condition of the bank and to appoint a committee of three of their number to carry on the business. Mr. GEORGE S. PUFFER was elected Chairman of the Committee, with authority to act as President pro tem. On the Tuesday after the death of Mr. RUSHMORE, Mr. PUFFER discovered that certain discrepancies existed in the accounts, and soon found that there was a deficiency in the securities of from $100,000 to $250,000. Up to that moment it was believed that the bank was in a highly prosperous condition; that the capital of $600,000 was secure; that a surplus of $75,000 was on hand, and that earned money was available for the payment of the July dividend. In fact, they had no reason to suppose otherwise. When, therefore, Mr. PUFFER made the startling discovery that the capital was reduced from a quarter to half the original amount, the fact could scarcely be realized. The more diligent and constant the scrutiny, however, the more certain it became that the bank had sustained a serious blow.

Ever since the first discovery, the directors have been engaged in probing the matter to the bottom; but their final action was precipitated, on Monday last, through a rumor having been circulated that the affairs of the bank were in a critical condition. A slight run was the consequence of the rumor, and depositors exhibited extreme anxiety to learn the full particulars. Very many drew out their deposits, and there is no doubt that a great excitement would have ensued to-day but for the prompt action of the parties concerned.

The directors met yesterday morning at an early hour and organized by appointing the President pro tem., Mr. GEO. S. PUFFER, Chairman. The following-named gentlemen were present: Judge John J. Lott, Hon. Henry C. Murphy, Peter C. Cornell, Henry F. Sheldon, B. Valentine, John French, William Hunter, Jr.

The state of affairs having been fully considered, the directors drew up an agreement pledging themselves, individually and collectively, to carry the bank through the crisis and to continue business as heretofore. Immediately after this statement, many who drew out their deposits on Monday relodged them yesterday morning, and the run is now at an end.

The directors were about to reorganize the bank under the State system when the crisis occurred, but it is even now hoped that it is yet expected that the change will be effected without delay.

It is understood that a large part of the deficit arises from advances made to a well-known contractor, on securities which the bank directors deem inadequate, but which the contractor insists are good for the amount. The same gentleman's account is stated to be largely overdrawn.

Another source of the deficit is understood to be the purchase of real estate by Mr. RUSHMORE, in his own name, the deeds being put away in the bank, and labeled by him "to secure the bank." Mr. RUSHMORE may have intended to hold the bank harmless in these purchases, but as the facts stand, the property belongs to the Rushmore estate, and the money that paid for it belonged to the bank.

LARGE FRAUDULENT SALES.

Messrs. Scott & Munson, of No. 91 Wall-street, Reported to have Decamped with $65,000 of Illegal Gains.

The commercial community was considerably agitated yesterday by the report that a large and daring fraud had been perpetrated by the firm of SCOTT & MUNSON, storage merchants, at No. 91 Wall-street, involving a loss to several grain merchants. It is said that they disappeared on Saturday last with $65,000 in their possession, the profits from the fraudulent sale of 75,000 bushels of oats intrusted to the care of the firm. The grain was received from different parties, and was placed in the stores of the firm on the north pier of the Atlantic Docks, Brooklyn. They occupied six stores here, which were rented from Mrs. THOMAS SHORETLAND, the owner. During last week it was noticed that the firm was selling an unusual amount of grain from the stores, but this created no suspicion at the time. On Saturday, however, both SCOTT and MUNSON were inquired after but could not be found, and on Monday it was reported that they had committed a breach of trust, absconding with the money which they had realized from their transaction. On Monday evening a private watchman was detailed to take charge of the stores by Mr. BACON MONTAGUE, of Brooklyn, who found a few hundred bushels stored in them which had not been sold. These were transferred to a subcontractor, leaving the only kind of grain stored with the firm which was not disposed of previous to their flight. A number of merchants were represented as being heavy losers by the alleged defalcation, and to be deeply embarrassed in business in consequence, but their names were not ascertained. Messrs. SCOTT & MUNSON were formerly employed on the Atlantic Docks, and entered into business for themselves about three years ago. Mr. VAN NOSTRAND, the well-known confectioner, becoming the head partner and moneyed man in the firm, of which he did not remain a member long, owing, it is understood, to some cause of distrust toward his two junior partners. SCOTT and MUNSON were both regarded as honest and exemplary young merchants by those who had commercial relations with them. The former was married, and the latter was single, supporting an aged parent. It is believed that they were tempted to engage in the dishonest sale of grain in consequence of having made several speculations recently in which they were severe sufferers, and came very near ruin. Their present whereabouts are not known, but it is supposed that they have escaped from the City and country, perhaps to return in a few years as strangers under assumed names.

REFORMED DUTCH CHUUCH.

Celebration of the Centennial of the North Dutch Church.

The one hundredth anniversary of the Collegiate North Reformed Dutch Church was commemorated with appropriate and elaborate exercises at the church edifice corner of William and Fulton streets, yesterday. The occasion was regarded with considerable significance, the Dutch Church being recognized as one of the early and most influential exponents and promoters of the reformed religion in this country, and being identified with numerous important local and historical events during the Colonial period and the Revolution.

Services were conducted in the morning and evening. Rev. THOMAS HEWITT, D. D., presided at the former, which was very largely attended. Rev. Drs. DEMOREST, WOODBRIDGE and DE WITT, of the Theological Seminary at New-Brunswick, and Rev. Dr. ENDY, of Brooklyn, were among the clergymen present. After a voluntary upon the organ, and an invocation by the presiding Minister, Mr. THOMAS JUNNIMAN was introduced and recited an introductory ode, which was inscribed to the Church. Rev. GEO. E. FISHER, of Hackensack, N. J., delivered a prayer, and was followed by Rev. Dr. DE WITT, who gave an entertaining account of the history of the Reformed Church in this country. Rev. THOMAS W. CHANDLER, D. D., was then introduced, and entered upon the delivery of a memorial address, having reference to the North Dutch Church. The exercises closed with prayers, hymns and the benediction.

Laying of a Corner-Stone.

The ceremony of laying the corner-stone of the Collegiate Dutch Reformed Church was performed yesterday, at the junction of Fifth-avenue and Forty-eighth-street, before a considerable crowd of both sexes. The opening prayer was offered by Rev. WM. H. CLARK, connected with the Mission of the Reformed Church on the corner of Fifth-avenue and Twenty-ninth-street. Singing followed, to the accompaniment of a melodeon, and a list was then read of articles placed in the zinc box which was to be inserted in a hollow of the stone upon which the corner-

PEARSALL-O'CONNOR.

Judge Cardozo Reluctantly Recognizes the Right of Habeas Corpus.

STARTLING SCENES IN COURT.

The Conclusion of the Trial—Indignant Letter from a New-York Lawyer—Call for a Meeting of the Bar of New-York.

The Pearsall-O'Connor habeas corpus case, about which so much has been said, written and published, was before Judge CARDOZO, of the Supreme Court, again yesterday, having been adjourned over from Friday of last week. The facts of this exceedingly interesting proceeding are, as our readers may recollect, substantially as follows:

One JULIA MCGRAW commenced an action in the Supreme Court of this district some months ago to obtain a divorce against her husband, on the ground of adultery. The matter was referred, and after the taking of considerable testimony, the referee made a report, and on this the Court granted a decree of divorce to the wife, and also adjudged that Mrs. MCGRAW should thereafter have the custody of a daughter aged five or six years. Afterward the divorced husband learned that his former wife had taken this little girl to a house of ill-fame in Crosby-street, kept by Mrs. PEARSALL, sister of Mrs. MCGRAW. The father of the child, as soon as he learned this fact, made application by petition to have the custody of the child changed, on the ground that it would be ruined if it were to continue to live in this house. Considerable testimony was then taken at Supreme Court Chambers, and pending the examination, as alleged, the mother and child were spirited away, the sisters PEARSALL and O'CONNOR being charged by Judge CARDOZO with furnishing the material aid. This charge the two sisters deny most emphatically, as appears from affidavits made by them and published in the TIMES of the 15th inst.

Judge CARDOZO granted an order of arrest, and on or about the 7th inst. the women PEARSALL and O'CONNOR were taken into custody by two Deputy Sheriffs, and confined in the Tombs, on two charges: First, for contempt of Court in aiding and abetting the escape of their sister and their husband beyond the jurisdiction of the Court, and, second, that they were guilty of keeping a disorderly house. On the 12th inst. a writ of habeas corpus was granted by Presiding Justice CLERKE, and made returnable before Judge CARDOZO. In this way the matter came before the Judge last named on the 14th inst. and again on the 17th inst. On the day last named it was adjourned over until yesterday.

The Court-room, as upon previous occasions, was crowded with a very promiscuous set of spectators. Inside the bar railing the assembly consisted mainly of respectable members of the Bar, who had been drawn hither by the sensation which have been published of this most remarkable case. Mr. District-Attorney GARVIN, Mr. E. W. STOUGHTON and Mr. JOHN GRAHAM occupied seats within the inner railing and close to the bench. Mr. TOWNSEND sat outside the inner railing, and at the table allotted to counsel and reporters. After some delay, Mr. JAMES O'CONNOR FANN addressed the Court substantially as follows: He wished to say a few words with regard to the matter pending before the Court. His Honor was of course aware that in the proceedings which had been taken heretofore, the ostensible and avowed purpose of obtaining the custody of the child, he (the speaker) acted as one of the counsel for Mrs. MCGRAW. The latter, pending the decision in the matter, had spirited away the child; at all events both mother and child were gone from the jurisdiction of this Court. What the mother had done was done without the knowledge or consent of her counsel. He had no power over her; and he knew nothing of her whereabouts. The statements he then made were with reference to his oath as an officer of this Court. He believed those statements to be true to the best of his knowledge and belief. His connection with the case ceased with his duties to his client in the civil proceeding already alluded to. He could offer no suggestion, except to ask the Court if it would not be wise, under all the circumstances, to exercise a little clemency, and to let the prisoners out on bail in a small amount, or at their own go on their parole. He felt confident they had not aided the mother to commit the alleged contempt of Court.

Judge CARDOZO—I am bound to say, Mr. FANN, in answer to the suggestions you have made, that I have at all times been ready and willing, upon any proper representations to the Court on behalf of these misguided women, to relieve them from the charge of contempt, upon any reasonable proof that they were originally innocent of any complicity in it; or that if they were not so, it was beyond their power to undo the wrong which they had committed. In respect to the other and more serious charge—the keeping of a common bawdy-house—I should also, at all times, have been entirely willing to accept such bail upon that charge, and to exercise such merciful consideration in that respect as I might, to the amount within their reach, as I lawfully might in the just discharge of my duty. But the difficulty is that they and their counsel do not agree with you in respect to the wisest course to be pursued in the matter. They think it wise to defy the law and to defy the Court, and while I might listen, as I certainly would, with the greatest consideration to your suggestions, yet as you are not their counsel, and not authorized to speak for them, I cannot entertain your proposition. It is proper, I might add, entirely right, that you, as a reputable member of the profession, engaged in the civil suit out of which these charges grew, were entirely justified in making the suggestions you have, but as they proceed from you, and not from the counsel of these women, I cannot entertain them.

Mr. TOWNSEND—If it please your Honor, as counsel for these women, I desire to place myself in a proper position—such a position as I desire to hold before your Honor and before all Courts where I practice. I have appeared for these women simply because they were charged with the offense of which they said they were not guilty. I have made no effort in any instance whatever to defy the Court, or to place the Court in an improper position. I never have suspected or intimated that the Court had been actuated by mistaken or improper motives. I have simply upon the statement of these women that they were charged with contempt of Court, and that they were not guilty. I have distinctly told them that so far as the charge of contempt was concerned, if their statement was incorrect, I should be the first to withdraw from their case and leave them entirely at the mercy of the Court. When I look at this case in all its bearings, I cannot see that I have done anything more than by virtue of my oath of office I was bound to do; I can't see that I have done more or less than my sworn duty. As to any remarks made between myself and the Judge, and which may have been made public, I regret them so far as their tendency is to bring the Court into contempt. I have simply to say that as counsel I believed these women were charged with contempt of Court simply; that inasmuch as they were charged with an offence of which they claimed to be innocent, they should be heard as speedily as possible, and not be compelled to remain in prison, especially as sickness had been brought upon them by their incarceration. In regard to the question of contempt, we are prepared, as we have always been, to satisfy the mind of the Court that there had been a great mistake. Your Honor has been misinformed. The statements and the testimony, if any, upon which your Honor acted, were erroneous. As to Miss O'CONNOR keeping a bawdy-house, we ask an examination. Whatever may be the fact as to Anna M. PEARSALL, we can show most conclusively that the presence O'CONNOR has never in any way been a party, and she cannot be held on that charge.

In his further remarks Mr. TOWNSEND referred to certain reports in the newspapers, and disclaimed having been a party to them in any manner. The responsibility did not attach to him.

Judge CARDOZO thought any reference to the newspapers would not become the dignity of the Court. He was ready to listen to any application on behalf of the prisoners; he was ready to make what he deemed a right disposition of the case.

Mr. TOWNSEND—Then I merely move on the examination as to the contempt proceedings.

Judge CARDOZO—Do you propose to waive an examination as to the charge of keeping a disorderly house, or do you wish an examination as to both of the charges which have been made?

Mr. TOWNSEND—It does not yet appear that the woman O'CONNOR is guilty of keeping a disorderly house. We say she is not. She has no connection with it, and never has had. We will go into an examination now as to her, on that point. As to PEARSALL, we will waive an examination and give bail.

District-Attorney GARVIN said he would not consent to have the cases divided in that manner.

Mr. TOWNSEND then asked the Court to fix the amount of bail.

Judge CARDOZO—Yes, I will take the papers and examine them, and during the day I will fix the amount of bail.

Mr. GRAHAM then said that he wished to have the affidavits of the prisoners, which had been published, read to the Court.

Mr. TOWNSEND—If they have been published, do not see the necessity of their being read in Court.

Judge CARDOZO said he paid very little attention to what had been published, and requested the reading of the affidavits, minutes of evidence taken, and so forth.

The inscription on the corner-stone stated the date of its being laid, giving the names of Rev. Drs. THOS. DE WITT, THOS. E. VENNEKER, Hon. R. CHAMBERS and JAMES M. LUDLOW, as the officers of the church, Cities Committee, JAMES PHYFE, MICHAEL SCHANCK, RICHARD ARCHBALD and DAVID ROSE.

After the reading of the papers, the Court was announced, in a few brief words, as purpose of laying the stone, and without further ceremony struck it three times, giving, at each blow, the name of each person of the Trinity. Prayers and addresses terminated the ceremony.

The architect of the new building is Mr. W. WHEELER SMITH, who has designed it in the English decorated gothic style. It will be finished during next year, and will cost about $600,000.
